	The role of information technology in the primary school	30
	How well prepared are our two teachers at Broadwood?	32
5	MAKING A START	33
	Choosing the programs	34
	The computer as a tool, not as an end in itself	34
	Tools, not training packages	34
	Expert in what?	35
	Teacher training: previous experience and available resources	36
	School resources	37
	If at first you don't succeed . . .	39
	Meeting teacher needs: the revised training programme	40
	Why did the teachers appear not to take up researchers' suggestions?	42
	An introduction to a database	45
	Using the database – a turning point?	46
	Interrogating the database	48
	Testing the children	49
	The role of headteacher and parents	50

6	HORSES FOR COURSES – Different programs for different purposes:
	a chronicle of events	52
	Spring term 1987	52
	Summer term 1987	64
	Autumn term 1987	73
	What do the teachers and researchers think? Some retrospective accounts	91
	The headteacher's reaction to the project	112
7	PROFILES OF PROGRESS?	114
	An experiment in changing self-images	114
	Accounting for change: children's explanations	120
	Accounting for change: researchers' observations	122
	A profile of improvement	124
	A profile of deterioration	126
8	MAINTAINING MOMENTUM	128
	The project and the National Curriculum	128
	A checklist of essential skills	129
	What did we learn about training?	135
	Providing adequate support	136
	How did the teachers cope with a limited number of computers?	137
	How will they maintain the momentum?	141
