

Contents

List of Contributors	vii
Preface	ix
1 Learning from Educational Television Programs	1
JENNINGS BRYANT, ALISON F. ALEXANDER and DAN BROWN
Introduction and purpose	1
Limitations	1
Children's television workshop programs	2
Other programs	17
The Agency for Instructional Television	26
Summary and conclusions	26
Acknowledgements	28
References	28
2 Formative Research for 3-2-1 Contact: Methods and Insights	31
KEITH W. MIELKE and MILTON CHEN
Introduction	31
The challenge to formative research	32
Phases of research	33
Formative research methods used with 3-2-1 Contact	34
Methodological issues	49
Selected findings and insights	51
Conclusion	54
Acknowledgements	55
References	55

3 Adult Learning from Educational Television: The Open University Experience	57
ANTHONY W. BATES
The importance of context	57
Educational characteristics of television	59
What roles does television play in Open University learning?	64
Case-studies and documentaries	65
Television as reinforcement	67
Delivery	68
"Relevance"	69
Individual differences	73
Broadcast notes	74
Conclusion	75
Acknowledgements	75
References	76
4 The Role of Television in the Formation of Children's Social Attitudes	79
PETER G. CHRISTENSON and DONALD F. ROBERTS
Introduction	79
Scope of the chapter	80
Research on television's attitudinal effects	81
Conditions and intervening variables	89
Concluding comments and speculation	95
References	97
5 Social Learning from Everyday Television	101
GRANT NOBLE
Rationale and overview	101
Some definitions	102
Conventional learning from entertainment programming	103
Learning social skills from characters on television	108
Quantifying the incidence of learning	114
Learning in relation to background characteristics	114
Morality in relation to television viewing	117
Conclusions	121
References	123

- 6 Researching the Effects of Television Advertising on Children: A Methodological Critique 125
MARVIN E. GOLDBERG and GERALD J. GORN
Introduction 125
Problems in measurement 127
Problems in assessing causality 133
Methodological biases: researching children's cognitive defenses vis-à-vis television commercials 140
The interaction between methodology, theoretical paradigm and pervasive biases in research 143
References 149
- 7 Factors Influencing the Effect of Television Violence on Children 153
L. ROWELL HUESMANN and LEONARD D. ERON
Introduction 153
Does television violence engender aggressive behavior? 155
Mediating variables in aggression: television violence relation 161
Mitigating the effects of television violence 170
Summary and conclusions 172
References 174
- 8 The Effects of Televised Sex and Pornography 179
DAVID K. B. NIAS
Introduction 179
The Presidential Commission 180
Imitation 180
Disinhibition 182
Desensitisation 184
Treatment procedures 185
Individual differences 186
Sex-aggression link 187
Ethics of sex research 188
Censorship 189
References 190
- 9 Children's Television and its Responsibilities: The Producer's Point of View 193
ANNA HOME

10 Learning How to be Intelligent Consumers of Television	203
DOROTHY G. SINGER and JEROME L. SINGER
Problems and possibilities of the television in our homes	203
Some attempts at instructional uses of television	204
Persisting issues: studies of stereotyping and aggression	205
A study of family viewing, prejudice and imagination	206
Reading and television viewing	207
Developing a curriculum for school children concerning television	211
Evaluating the effects of the curriculum	213
A follow-up study and extension to younger children	215
National field-testing of the curriculum	217
References	220
Subject Index	223