

Contents

Preface and acknowledgements	page vii
Chronological table of historical and literary events 1560–1960	ix
List of illustrations	xxi
Introduction	i
1 First encounters: the historical context	7
2 Eighteenth-century letters and narratives: Ignatius Sancho, Olaudah Equiano, and Dean Mahomed	17
3 Speaking truth for freedom and justice: Robert Wedderburn and Mary Prince	56
4 The imperial century	72
5 Querying race, gender, and genre: nineteenth-century narratives of escape	84
6 Travellers and reformers: Mary Seacole and B.M. Malabari	126
7 Connecting cultures: Cornelia and Alice Sorabji	142
8 Ending empire	167
9 Duse Mohamed Ali, anti-imperial journals, and black and Asian publishing	182
10 Subaltern voices and the construction of a global vision	200
11 Epilogue	233
Notes	253
Notes on early writers	284
Bibliography	295
Index	309