

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: The Reconstruction of Space and Time through Mobile Communication Practices Rich Ling and Scott W. Campbell	1
1. Tailing Untethered Mobile Users: Studying Urban Mobilities and Communication Practices Dana Diminescu, Christian Licoppe, Zbigniew Smoreda, and Cezary Ziemlicki	17
2. Migrant Workers and Mobile Phones: Technological, Temporal, and Spatial Simultaneity Fernando Paragas	39
3. Portable Objects in Three Global Cities: The Personalization of Urban Places Mizuko Ito, Daisuke Okabe, and Ken Anderson	67
4. New Reasons for Mobile Communication: Intensification of Time-Space Geography in the Mobile Era Ilkka Arminen	89
5. Nonverbal Cues in Mobile Phone Text Messages: The Effects of Chronemics and Proxemics Nicola Döring and Sandra Pöschl	109
6. Mobile Phones: Transforming the Everyday Social Communication Practice of Urban Youth Eva Thulin and Bertil Vilhelmson	137

7.	Trust, Friendship, and Expertise: The Use of Email, Mobile Dialogues, and SMS to Develop and Sustain Social Relations in a Distributed Work Group Tom Erik Julsrud and John Willy Bakke	159
8.	Negotiations in Space: The Impact of Receiving Phone Calls on the Move Ann Light	191
9.	Mobile Phone “Work”: Disengaging and Engaging Mobile Phone Activities with Concurrent Activities Marc Relieu	215
10.	Beyond the Personal and Private: Modes of Mobile Phone Sharing in Urban India Molly Wright Steenson and Jonathan Donner	231
	Conclusion: Mobile Communication in Space and Time— Furthering the Theoretical Dialogue Scott W. Campbell and Rich Ling	251
	About the Contributors	261
	Index	267