

Contents

Foreword	vii
Notes on Contributors	xi
Introduction Mike Pedler	1
Part I: WHAT IS ACTION LEARNING?
1 Action Learning: its origins and nature Reg Revans	9
2 The power of Action Learning Bob Garratt	23
3 Where Action Learning fits in David Casey	39
4 On the difference between P and Q Mike Pedler	55
Part II: USING ACTION LEARNING
5 A range of applications David Sutton	65
6 The mixed set Martin J. Hughes	73
7 Supervisory development David Boddy	83

8	Improving management morale and efficiency	93
	Norman Brown
9	An in-company programme	105
	Alec Lewis
10	Action Learning in the social services	119
	Kate Corfield and Mike Penney
11	Action Learning in the community	127
	Brian Cranwell
12	Action Learning on an academic course	141
	John Pike
13	Action Learning and organisational change	153
	Peter Gay
14	Building a community of action learners	165
	Ronnie Lessem
15	Action Learning around the world	173
	Nancy G. McNulty
 Part III: LAUNCHING AN ACTION LEARNING PROGRAMME
16	The components of Action Learning	191
	Alan Lawlor
17	The role of the set adviser	205
	David Casey
18	Developing the set adviser	217
	J. M. Harries
19	Another look at set advising	227
	Mike Pedler
20	The role of the personnel specialist	239
	David Pearce
21	Action Learning: an evaluation	251
	Mark Easterby-Smith and John Burgoyne
 APPENDICES
1	Getting started: an action manual	261
	David Pearce
2	A bibliography of Action Learning	277
	Nelson Coghill
3	People and organisations in Action Learning	283
	Index	289