

Contents

Preface	ix
Tables	xv
Figures	xix
The Editors	xxiii
Contributors	xxv

Part One: Measuring Intelligence 1

1. What Do Intelligence Tests Measure? 5
Anne Anastasi
2. Motivational Psychology and Mental Measurement 29
John W. Atkinson
3. Is Measuring Intelligence Still Useful? 45
Jan J. Elshout

	Part Two: Setting Performance Standards	57
4.	Standards for Placement and Certification Lorrie A. Shepard	61
5.	Standards in Occupational Settings Albert P. Maslow	91
6.	The Case for Compromise in Educational Selection and Grading Willem K. B. Hofstee	109
	Part Three: Anxiety and Test Performance	129
7.	Understanding and Modifying Test Anxiety Irwin G. Sarason	133
8.	Anxiety, Coping Strategies, and Performance Heinz W. Krohne, Paul Schaffner	150
9.	Fear of Failure and Performance on Ability Tests Willy Lens	175
	Part Four: Latent Trait Theories and Applications	191
10.	Analyzing Data Using the Rasch Model Erling B. Andersen	193
11.	Bayesian Inference for Latent Abilities Charles Lewis	224
12.	Some Theoretical Concerns About Applying Latent Trait Models in Educational Testing Wilhelm Kempf	252
	Name Index	271
	Subject Index	277