

Table of contents

Foreword	ix
Section 1: Linguistics and philology
Introduction: Linguistics and philology Anne Curzan and Kimberly Emmons	3
Philology, linguistics, and the history of [hw]~[w] Donka Minkova	7
An essay in historical sociolinguistics?: On Donka Minkova's "Philology, linguistics, and the history of [hw]~[w]" Lesley Milroy	47
A brief response Donka Minkova	55
Why we should not believe in short diphthongs David L. White	57
Extended forms ( Streckformen ) in English Anatoly Liberman	85
Linguistic change in words one owns: How trademarks become "generic" Ronald R. Butters and Jennifer Westerhaus	111
Section 2: Corpus- and text-based studies
Introduction: Corpus- and text-based studies Anne Curzan and Kimberly Emmons	127
The meanings and uses of the progressive construction in an early eighteenth-century English network Susan M. Fitzmaurice	131

Investigating the expressive progressive: On Susan M. Fitzmaurice's "The meanings and uses of the progressive construction in an early eighteenth-century English network" Erik Smitterberg	175
A brief response Susan M. Fitzmaurice	183
Modal use across registers and time Douglas Biber	189
The need for good texts: The case of Henry Machyn's Day Book, 1550-1563 Richard W. Bailey	217
The perils of firsts: Dating Rawlinson MS Poet. 108 and tracing the development of monolingual English lexicons Ian Lancashire	229
Section 3: Constraint-based studies
Introduction: Constraint-based studies Anne Curzan and Kimberly Emmons	275
The evolution of Middle English alliterative meter Geoffrey Russom	279
Old English poetry and the alliterative revival: On Geoffrey Russom's "The evolution of Middle English alliterative meter" Robert D. Fulk	305
A brief response Geoffrey Russom	313
A central metrical prototype for English iambic tetrameter verse: Evidence from Chaucer's octosyllabic lines Xingzhong Li	315

Early English clause structure change in a stochastic optimality theory setting Brady Z. Clark	343
The role of perceptual contrast in Verner's Law Olga Petrova	371
Section 4: Dialectology
Introduction: Dialectology Anne Curzan and Kimberly Emmons	411
Historical perspectives on the pen/pin merger in Southern American English Michael Montgomery and Connie Eble	415
Digging up the roots of Southern American English: On Michael Montgomery and Connie Eble's "Historical perspectives on the pen/pin merger in Southern American English" Guy Bailey	435
A brief response Michael Montgomery and Connie Eble	445
Vowel merger in west central Indiana: A naughty, knotty project Betty S. Phillips	447
The spread of negative contraction in early English Richard M. Hogg	459
Name index	483
Subject index	491