Acknowledgement vii
Abbreviations and Symbols xiii
Tables xvii
Introduction 1

Chapter 1 Evidence of Words and Lexicons 11
1.0 Finding a Beginning 11, 1.1 The Lexicon and Memory 13, 1.2 The Lexicon and Syntax 20

Chapter 2 The Functions and Properties of the Lexicon 27
2.0 Having and Doing 27, 2.1 The Functions of the Lexicon 28, 2.11 Expansion of the Lexical Stock vs. Extension of a Lexemic Base 29, 2.12 Lexical Copying and Insertion 32, 2.13 The Location of Neologization 34, 2.2 The Properties of the Lexicon 39, 2.21 Word? 39, 2.22 Lexical Relations 45

Chapter 3 The Sound-Meaning Relation 53
3.0 Having Meaning 53, 3.1 Sound-Meaning Asymmetry 57, 3.2 Description, Naming and Idioms 62, 3.3 Conclusions 69

Chapter 4 Lexical Issues and IE Languages 71
4.0 A Summary with a Note on Approach 71, 4.1 A Summary of Essential Questions 72, 4.2 The IE Languages 75, 4.3 A Note on Argumentation 81

Notes to Book I 85
Chapter 5  The Separation of Derivation and Affixation
5.1 Assumptions and Methodology  91, 5.2 Derivation vs. Affixation  104

Chapter 6  The IEPossessional Adjectives in Serbocroatian
6.1 A Tentative Derivational Rule  115, 6.2 On the Way to Morphology: Transformations  130, 6.31 Derivations within Derivations  138, 6.32 The Possessional Agentive Derivation  143

Chapter 7  The Morphological Component: Affixation
7.1 The General Range of the M-Component  149,
7.2 Affix Copying and Insertion: The HAdjs  154,
7.3 The Lexeme-Morpheme Adjustment Rules  162

Chapter 8  The Types of Lexical Derivations
8.1 Two New Questions  171, 8.21 The Cardinal IE Adjectivizations  175, 8.22 The Cardinal IE Nominalizations  180, 8.23 The Dative, Genitive and Other Things  197, 8.3 Conclusions  200

Chapter 9  The Origins and Operations of Lexical Derivations
9.1 Lexical Subcategory Derivation  203, 9.2 Case Relations and Derivation  209, 9.3 Special Problems 223, 9.4 The ‘Whys’ and ‘Wherefores’ of Lexical Derivation  232

Notes to Book II

Chapter 10  Lexical Performance
10.1 Grammar and Competence  245, 10.2 Dual Memories and Performance  248, 10.31 Derivational Gaps in Serbocroatian  252, 10.32 The Question of ‘Semantic Drift’  255, 10.33 Alternatives to ‘Semantic Drift’  257, 10.34 Logically Determined Semantic Conventions  261, 10.35 Purely Logical Constraints  266, 10.4 The Mental Levels of Performance  269, 10.5 The Missing Pieces in English  272
Chapter 11  The Intersection of the Diachronic and Synchronic Axes

Chapter 12  Conclusions and Prospects

12.0 The Five Basic Issues 309, 12.1 The Relation of Meaning to Sound 310, 12.2 The Nature of Lexical Storage 316, 12.3 The Operations of Neogenic Processes 322, 12.4 The Nature of Lexical Copy-Insertion 329, 12.5 The Relation of the Lexicon to General Knowledge 332

Epilogue

Notes to Book III

Appendix

References

Index of Affixes and Derivations

Index of Authors

Index of Subjects