

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	vii
Jan Průcha
Introduction: Contemporary Soviet Psycholinguistics	1

PART ONE: LANGUAGE FROM THE FUNCTIONAL POINT OF VIEW

Viktorija N. Jarceva
The Range of Expansion of Syntactical Structures in Relation to the Volume of Information	13
Vladimir G. Gak
The Relation between Utterance Structures and the Extralinguistic Situation	25
Simona Elijošiute
Verbal Inducement: the Role of the Conditions under which it is Effected	39
Margarita N. Kožina
Some Basic Problems in the Theory of Functional Styles	51

PART TWO: GRAMMATICAL AND SEMANTIC ASPECTS OF SPEECH ACTIVITY

Nikolaj I. Žinkin
Thought and Speech	65
Aleksej A. Leont'ev
Sense as a Psychological Concept	81
Inna M. Luščixina
A Psycholinguistic Investigation of the Operator's Speech Communication	91
Valentina D. Tunkel
Reception and the Subsequent Transmission of a Speech Message	99
Anna P. Klimenko
An Approach to the Psycholinguistic Study of One Semantic Micro-System	111
Viktor V. Levickij
Semantic Word-Structure and Extralinguistic Factors	125
Rajmund Piotrowski
Meaning Information and its Measures	137
Jurij M. Orlov and Aleksandr P. Žuravlev
Psychometric Measurement of the Semantic Distance between Transforms	149

PART THREE: DEVELOPMENTAL PSYCHOLINGUISTICS

Tatjana N. Ušakova
Children's Word Creation	165
Gajanè R. Kanecjan
An Analysis of Speech in the Six-Year-Old Armenian Child	177
Irina M. Geodakjan
Expression of the Category of Time in the Speech of a Young Child	185

PART FOUR: NEUROLINGUISTICS AND ANALYSIS OF SPEECH
PATHOLOGIES

Aleksandr R. Luria
A Neuropsychological Analysis of Speech Communication	191
Vladimir I. Bel'tjukov
The Problem of Oral Speech Perception: Some Considerations on Lipreading	209
Elena N. Vinarskaja
Word-Probability Relations in Pathological Verbal Behavior	219
E. A. Goldberg
A Neuropsychological Analysis of the Semantic Aspects of Text Perception	229
Index	239