

Contents

Acknowledgements	vi
Introduction: The Doctrine of the Trinity and the Challenge of Religious Pluralism	1
Part I: The Uniqueness of the Christian Trinitarian Faith as the End of the Dialogue
1 Karl Barth: The Trinity as the distinguishing mark of the Christian God	13
Part II: The Potential and Critical Function of the Christian Trinitarian Faith in the Dialogue with Other Religions
2 Karl Rahner: Trinity and ‘anonymous Christianity’	31
3 Jacques Dupuis: A trinitarian theology of religious pluralism	49
4 Gavin D’Costa: A ‘Catholic’ trinitarian theology of religions	67
5 Wolfhart Pannenberg: The trinitarian faith as the resource for the common search for the truth	81
6 Clark Pinnock: A pneumato-trinitarian theology of religions	97
Part III: The Christian Trinitarian Faith as an Embrace of Pluralism
7 John Hick: The doctrine of the Trinity as problematic	109
8 Raimundo Panikkar: The cosmotheandric trinitarian mystery	119
9 S. Mark Heim: A trinitarian theology of religious ends	134
Part IV: A Case Study in Trinitarian Theology of Religions
10 The Roman Catholic Church’s trinitarian doctrine and the monotheism of Islam	155
Conclusion: Toward a Trinitarian Theology of Religions	164
Bibliography	185
Index	194