The Degustatory Mm	78
The 'Hesitation Marker' Mm	87
The Repair Initiator Mm	93
The Answering Mm	95
Conclusion	96

Chapter 4. From continuer to acknowledgement token:
Mm as a token between Mm hm and Yeah	99
Introduction	99
Distribution of Mm , Mm hm/Uh huh and Yeah	101
Terminal pitch direction and the response token Mm	104
Mm as a weaker, more neutral acknowledger than Yeah	105
Response tokens Mm , Yeah and Mm hm with falling terminal pitch direction	108
Canonical cases of Mm as acknowledgement token with falling contour	109
Canonical cases of Yeah as acknowledgement token with falling contour	113
Non-canonical case of Mm hm with falling contour	116
Response tokens Mm , Yeah and Mm hm with rising terminal pitch direction	117
Canonical cases of Mm hm as continuer with rising terminal pitch direction	119
Non-canonical cases of Mm as continuer with rising terminal pitch direction	124
Non-canonical cases of Yeah as continuer with rising terminal pitch direction	126
Conclusion	129
Chapter 5: The Weakness of Mm: Topic disalignment and zero projection	133
Introduction	133
Mm and topic disalignment	135
Mm plus substantial same speaker talk	136
Topic change	136
Topic recycling	141
Mm plus substantial same speaker talk in dispreferred environments	147
Free-standing Mm and contiguous silence	152
Mm followed by silence	152
Mm following a silence	155
Free-standing Mm and other speaker continuation	159
Mm at the end of a multi-unit turn	159
Mm in topic attrition environments	162

Mm at a point of completion, with falling intonation	163
Mm as a continuer, with fall-rising intonation	166
Mm plus brief same speaker reactive talk	168
Yeah and Mm hm followed by substantial same speaker talk	176
Conclusions	184
Chapter 6: Intonation contour and the use of Mm	187
Introduction	187
Intonation in conversation: a review	188
Identifying intonation units	189
Functions of intonation	193
Mm with falling intonation	196
Canonical cases of Mm as acknowledger with falling contour	197
Falling Mm as a flexible second position response	198
Falling Mm in post-expansion position	199
Falling Mm following a multi-unit turn	200
Falling Mm accompanied by other minimal same speaker talk	202
Falling Mm : Some apparently anomalous examples	204
Mm with fall-rising intonation	210
Free-standing, fall-rising Mm in the environment of incipient trouble in the talk	213
Fall-rising Mm in an environment in which a topic has not yet become salient	214
Fall-rising Mm in the middle of a multi-unit turn by the other speaker	216
Fall-rising Mm following a dependent clause	220
Fall-rising Mm in the environment of dispreferreds	221
Fall-rising Mm in the environment of hitches and perturbations	225
A fall-rising Mm with substantial same speaker talk	228
Mm with rise-falling intonation	232
Rise-falling Mm in the environment of assessments	236
Rise-falling Mm following other speaker assessment	236
Rise-falling Mm prior to own assessment	238
Rise-falling Mm following other speaker expression of inner state	241
Rise-falling Mm in the environment of 'involving' topics	242
Rise-falling Mm in some other environments	244
Conclusion	249
