

Contents

Introduction	1
1. Peirce and the type-token relation	8
Introduction	8
Peirce's theory of categories	11
The type-token relation and the theory of signs	16
2. A survey of some writings on the type-token relation	31
Introduction	31
Stebbing (1935): 'Sounds, shapes and words'	31
A controversy over the type-token relation in Analysis	38
Quotation marks and the type-token relation	43
Strang (1958): 'Types and tokens in language'	49
Cohen (1966): The Diversity of Meaning	51
Lyons (1977): Semantics	54
Reference, indexicality and the type-token relation	55
Conclusion to Chapter 2	60
3. The type-token relation and the aesthetic object	62
Introduction	62
The work of art: ideal or aesthetic object?	62
Wollheim (1968): Art and its Objects: 'seeing objects as art'	67
Identity and notation systems: Goodman's Languages of Art	77
Conclusion to Chapter 3	89

4. Linguistic abstraction and linguistic knowledge	92
Introduction	92
Saussure's Cours de Linguistique Générale and langue-parole	92
Developments and criticisms of Saussure's concept of langue	98
Competence and performance	106
Chomsky's view of mind and linguistic knowledge	113
Social facts and idiolectal competence	118
Idiolectal knowledge and the type-token relation	120
Conclusion to Chapter 4	123
5. Grammaticality	126
Conclusion to Chapter 5	137
6. The grammatical hierarchy	139
7. Conclusion	162
Bibliography	169
Name Index	177
Topic Index	179