

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION	3
1. AN INTERDISCIPLINARY THEORETICAL APPROACH TO THE STUDY OF TRAUMA
1.1 A brief history of the studies on trauma	9
1.2 The social dimension of trauma	16
1.3 Trauma and memory	26
1.4 Trauma and testimony	31
1.5 Trauma and history	37
1.6 Representing the Holocaust	41
1.7 Trauma as a pathology of history	46
2. MARTIN AMIS'S TIME'S ARROW AS TRAUMA FICTION
2.1 Some preliminary considerations on art, ethics and language	49
2.2 Martin Amis	59
2.3 Time's Arrow : an introduction	60
2.4 Intertextuality: Robert Jay Lifton's The Nazi Doctors	63
2.5 The Holocaust between modernism and postmodernism	71
2.6 What is trauma fiction?	73
2.7 The significance of the time's reversal in Time's Arrow	77
2.8 The status of the narrator in Time's Arrow	87
2.9 The role of the reader in Time's Arrow	91
CONCLUSION: "STYLE IS MORALITY"	97
BIBLIOGRAPHY	103