

Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction: The Rise of the Novel in Russia JOHN GARRARD	1
I. The Novel in Russia
Influence and Tradition in the Russian Novel DONALD FANGER	29
Design in the Russian Novel EDWARD WASIOLEK	51
II. High Noon
Fathers and Sons: Fathers and Children KATHRYN FEUER	67
The Recuperative Powers of Memory: Tolstoy's War and Peace PATRICIA CARDEN	81
Dostoevsky and the Tale of Terror ROBIN FEUER MILLER	103
III. Decline and Renewal
Bely's Petersburg and the End of the Russian Novel CAROL ANSCHUETZ	125
The Novel in Crisis: Boris Pilnyak and Konstantin Fedin VICTOR ERLICH	155
Three Postrevolutionary Russian Utopian Novels JURIJ STRIEDTER	177
Doctor Zhivago , Russia, and Leonid Pasternak's Rembrandt GEORGE GIBIAN	203
IV. Critics and Criticism
The Theory of the Novel in Russia in the 1930s: Lukács and Bakhtin MICHEL AUCOUTURIER	227

The Nineteenth-Century Russian Novel in English and American Criticism RENÉ WELLEK	241
Appendix 1. Chronology of Russian Novels and Novelists	275
Appendix 2. Recommended Translations	287
Index	291