

Contents

Preface	ix
SECTION 1—LEARNING CHARACTERISTICS OF HANDICAPPED STUDENTS AND THE PROVISION OF EFFECTIVE EDUCATION
Introduction	3
MARGARET C. WANG Temple University
Ethnocultural and Social-Psychological Effects on Learning Characteristics of Handicapped Children	7
ELLEN ANDERSON BRANTLINGER SAMUEL L. GUSKIN Indiana University
Learning Characteristics of Mildly Handicapped Students: Implications for Classification, Placement, and Programming	35
DANIEL J. RESCHLY Iowa State University
The Role of the Learner: An Individual Difference Variable in School Learning and Functioning	59
MARGARET C. WANG Temple University STEPHEN T. PEVERLY Columbia University
Advances in Improving the Cognitive Performance of Handicapped Students	93
ANNEMARIE SULLIVAN PALINCSAR Michigan State University ANN BROWN University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign
Effective Educational Practices and Provisions for Individual Differences	113
HERBERT J. WALBERG University of Illinois, Chicago MARGARET C. WANG Temple University
SECTION 2—EFFECTIVENESS OF DIFFERENTIAL PROGRAMMING IN SERVING HANDICAPPED STUDENTS
Introduction	131
KENNETH A. KAVALE University of Iowa

Relationship Among Academic, Social, and Career Education in Programming for Handicapped Students	133
GALE M. MORRISON University of California, Santa Barbara
Diagnostic-Prescriptive Teaching	155
RONALD P. COLARUSSO Georgia State University
Application of Cognitive-Behavioral Training Methods to Teaching Basic Skills to Mildly Handicapped Elementary School Students	167
MICHAEL M. GERBER University of California, Santa Barbara
Programming Independent Living Skills for Handicapped Learners	187
LARRY K. IRVIN DANIEL W. CLOSE ROBERT L. WELLS University of Oregon
The Effectiveness of Differential Programming in Serving Students with Mild Handicaps: Placement Options and Instructional Programming	213
SUSAN EPPS GERALD TINDAL University of Oregon
 SECTION 3—NONCATEGORICAL PROGRAMMING FOR MILDLY HANDICAPPED STUDENTS
Introduction	251
MAYNARD C. REYNOLDS University of Minnesota
Classification of Handicapped Students	253
JAMES E. YSSELDYKE University of Minnesota
Avoiding or Limiting Special Education Referrals: Changes and Challenges	273
ANN NEVIN JACQUELINE THOUSAND University of Vermont
Noncategorical Special Education Programs: Process and Outcomes	287
CATHERINE VOELKER MORSINK University of Florida CAROL CHASE THOMAS University of North Carolina, Wilmington JUDY SMITH-DAVIS University of Nevada, Reno

---

Noncategorical Special Education Personnel Preparation	313
A. EDWARD BLACKHURST DEBORAH A. BOTT DONALD P. CROSS University of Kentucky
Noncategorical Special Education: Models for Research and Practice	331
MAYNARD C. REYNOLDS K. CHARLIE LAKIN University of Minnesota
Author Index	357
Subject Index	379