
Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction: Departing from Frege	1
1 Paring down Frege	1
1.1 Modes of presentation	2
1.2 Specifying senses	4
1.3 Senses and indirect speech	7
1.4 Indexicality	9
1.5 Sense without a referent	9
1.6 The determination of reference, sharp boundaries, saturation	14
1.7 The nature of sense	17
1.8 An overlooked position	19
2 The essays: provenance and comments	19
I Understanding and theories of meaning (1979)	29
1 Understanding and structure	30
2 Extensionality	35
3 “Means that” and theories of meaning	37
Postscript: on truth and “truth conditions”	41
II Evans on reference (1985)	43
1 Singular terms	43
2 Information, communication, thought	48
2.1 Information-invoking singular terms and information-based thought	48
2.2 Communication	55
2.3 Two objections to Evans’s view of thoughts	57
3 Existence	64
4 Coda	69

III	Concepts without boundaries (1990)	71
	1 Classification by classes	71
	2 There is no set of red things	72
	3 An unsharp boundary is many sharp boundaries	73
	4 Fuzzy logic and supervaluations	75
	5 Boundaryless concepts	76
	6 Paradox	78
	7 Semantics for boundarylessness	79
	8 Paradigms and prototypes	81
	9 Conclusion	83
IV	Russell on names and communication (1993)	85
	1 Introduction	85
	2 What Russell actually said	87
	3 Russell's theory of communication and the public reference of names	90
	4 Russell's theory of the truth conditions of utterances containing names	93
	Comments 93
	5 Solutions to some problems	95
	Existence 95
	Belief 97
	Identity 97
	6 Criticisms of description theories	98
V	How can some thing say something? (1996)	102
	1 Background	102
	2 How to solve the problem: Candlish's suggestions	104
	3 Another approach	106
VI	Easy possibilities (1997)	112
	1 Introduction	112
	2 Tracking	113
	2 KK	115
	4 Hidden snags	116
	5 Determinism	117
	6 Worlds	118
	7 Vagueness	120
	8 Objections	122
VII	Fregean sense (1997)	125
	1 Introduction	125
	1.1 Sense is a property of tokens 125
	1.2 Sense without senses 126

	1.3 Sense and explanation	126
2	Millikan's objections to Fregean sense	127
	2.1 Meaning rationalism	127
	2.2 Identity and folders	131
	2.3 Identity, recognition and the apriori	132
	2.4 Psychology and semantics	133
3	Logic and guaranteed sameness of reference	133
VIII	Indexicals and reported speech (1998)	137
1	A hypothesis about meaning	137
2	Non-detachability and semantic theory	140
3	Indexicality, anaphora and reducibility	146
4	Reducibility: action, science, time and God	149
	Reducibility	149
	Action	150
	Science	152
	Time	152
	God	154
5	The Fregean connection	155
IX	Names, fictional names, and "really" (1999)	159
1	Introduction	159
2	Evans's arguments for the Russellian view of names	159
	2.1 Discriminating knowledge	160
	2.2 Invoking information	161
	2.3 Understanding and knowledge	162
	2.4 The first argument: truth is seamless	162
	2.5 The second argument: the demand of unity	164
3	Understanding fiction	167
	3.1 Quasi-fear	167
	3.2 Make-believe and understanding	169
4	"Really"	171
X	Knowing meanings and knowing entities (2001)	181
1	Acquaintance with meanings	181
2	x means y	184
3	"That"-clauses do not refer to meanings	185
4	Meanings and understanding	186
5	Indirect questions and knowing what	188
6	Things which are not entities?	190
XI	Two ways to smoke a cigarette (2001)	192
1	Introduction	192

2	Understanding utterances: covert indexicality as a resource for compositionalist	193
3	Apparent counterexamples to compositionality	195
4	Applying the strategies	197
	4.1 Adjectival modification	197
	4.2 Genitives	199
	4.3 Compounded nouns	200
	4.4 Verbs	201
	4.5 The Travis effect	201
5	Conclusion	203
XII	Sense without reference (2001)	205
1	Introduction	205
2	Some general Fregean considerations	208
3	Name-using practices	210
	3.1 A simple model	211
	3.2 Duplicated sources: qualitatively the same information may inform different practices	212
	3.3 Information involved in distinguishing practices?	213
	3.4 Fusion	215
	3.5 Confusions	219
	3.6 Fission	220
4	Source a disjunctive property?	222
	Bibliography	224
	Index	231