

Midwest Studies in Philosophy

Volume XVI

Philosophy and the Arts

James Joyce and Humpty Dumpty	Donald Davidson	1
What Metaphors Do Not Mean	Josef Stern	13
The Psychology of Aristotelian Tragedy	Amélie Oksenberg Rorty	53
Poetry as Response: Heidegger's Step Beyond Aestheticism	Karsten Harries	73
Hell in Amsterdam: Reflections on Camus's The Fall	Philip L. Quinn	89
Beauty and Anti-Beauty in Literature and its Criticism	Guy Sircello	104
The Elusiveness of Moral Recognition and the Imaginary Place of Fiction	David K. Glidden	123
Imaginary Gardens and Real Toads: On the Ethics of Basing Fiction on Actual People	Felicia Ackerman	142
Pictorial Representation: A Defense of the Aspect Theory	T. E. Wilkerson	152
Two Approaches to Representation—And Then a Third	Nicholas Wolterstorff	167
Science and Aesthetic Appreciation	Peter Kivy	180
Understanding: Art and Science	Catherine Z. Elgin	196
On Pluralism and Indeterminacy	Robert Kraut	209
The "Nature" of Interpretable Things	Joseph Margolis	226
Real Beauty	Eddy M. Zemach	249
The Aesthetic Value of Originality	Bruce Vermazen	266
On Jokes	Noël Carroll	280
Art and 'Art'	Julius M. Moravcsik	302
Paul Strand's Photographs in Camera Work	Norton T. Batkin	314
Rules of Proportion in Architecture	Patrick Suppes	352
The Meaning of Music	Diana Raffman	360
Conceptions of Musical Structure	Mark DeBellis	378
Look What They've Done to My Song: "Historical Authenticity" and the Aesthetics of Musical Performance	Aron Edidin	394
How Can Music Be Moral?	Colin Radford	421
What Is a Temporal Art?	Jerrold Levinson and Philip Alperson	439