

Contents

Notes on contributors	vii
Introduction	1
SECTION I GLOBALISATION OF ELECTRONIC EMPIRES	11
Introduction to Section I	13
1 Striving for communication dominance: a half-century review Herbert I. Schiller	17 ✓
2 Media convergence and globalisation Robert W. McChesney	27 ✗
3 Full of Eastern promise? Central and Eastern European media after 1989 John Downey	47
4 Infotainment international: a view from the South Daya Kishan Thussu	63
Discussion questions	83
SECTION II GLOBAL MEDIA: A GLOBAL PUBLIC SPHERE?	85
Introduction to Section II	87
5 What price the public sphere? Jim McGuigan	91
6 Is there a global public sphere? Colin Sparks	108
7 Privatising public space Edward S. Herman	125 ✓

8 Worldwide wedge: division and contradiction in the global information infrastructure Peter Golding	135
Discussion questions	149
SECTION III DEBATING MEDIA GLOBALISATION	151
Introduction to Section III	153
X 9 Media imperialism reformulated Oliver Boyd-Barrett	157
10 Global and regional dynamics of international television flows Stuart Cunningham, Elizabeth Jacka and John Sinclair	177
11 Trends in global media reception Anandam P. Kavoori	193
12 Feminist internationalism: imagining and building global civil society Annabelle Sreberny	208
Discussion questions	223
SECTION IV GLOBAL MEDIA AND LOCAL RESISTANCE	225
Introduction to Section IV	227
13 The right to communicate Anuradha Vittachi	231
14 An alternative globalization: youthful resistance to electronic empires Tony Downumt	243
15 Electronic empires: an Islamic perspective Ali Mohammadi	257
16 Localising the global: Zee TV in India Daya Kishan Thussu	273
Discussion questions	295
Author index	297
Subject index	300