

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Introduction: Subversive Strategies	1
Jean Andrews: Jane Austen's little "inch of ivory" and Carmen Laforet's Nada , what else could a woman write about?	13
Catherine Boyle: The Fragile Perfection of the Shrouded Rebellion (Re-reading Passivity in María Luisa Bombal)	27
Mercè Clarasó: The Two Worlds of Mercè Rodoreda	43
Catherine Davies: Beastly Women and Underdogs: the short fiction of Dora Alonso	55
Jo Evans: Carmen Conde's Mujer sin Edén : Controversial notions of 'sin'	71
Catherine Grant: Women or Words? The Indigenous Nodriza in the work of Rosario Castellanos	85
Stephen M. Hart: The Female Pinup Unpenned: Images of Women in Hispanic Art	101
Clara Janés: El ser o no ser de la escritura	115
Jean Mackenzie: Going Places? The Subversion of Linearity in Tina Díaz's Transición	127
Kathleen March: Engendering the Political Novel: Gioconda Belli's La mujer habitada	143
Gustavo San Román: Expression and Silence in the Poetry of Juana de Ibarbourou and Idea Vilariño	157

Helen Wing: Julie Sopetrán and Jorge Guillén: Poetry of Harmony?	177
Mirta Yáñez: Poesía femenina en Cuba	195
✕ Montserrat Ordóñez: El oficio de escribir (a modo de conclusión)	209

Illustrations

Eugène Delacroix, Liberty Guiding the People (1830)	113
Anonymous, Allegory of the Departure of Dom Pedro II for Europe after the Declaration of the Republic (1890)	114