

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xviii
Introduction	1

Part One: Philosophical Achievements of the Ancient Greeks

1. In Appreciation of the Pre-Socratics	13
2. Lessons from Greek Atomism for Modern Thought	16
3. Plato's Near Miss: Soul as Self-Moved	23
4. Aristotle's Modal View of Time and Eternity	40
5. Stoics, Skeptics, and Greek Mystics	57
6. Sketch of Greek Ethics and Aesthetics	61

Part Two: Between the Greeks and the Moderns

7. Medieval Philosophy in General	67
8. What Did Anselm Discover?	93
9. Duns Scotus, William of Ockham, and Others	104

Part Three: Modern (European) Philosophers

10. "The Moses of Modern Philosophy"	111
11. Spinoza: First of the Moderns or Last of the Medievals?	118
12. The "Clearheaded" Philosopher	127
13. Hume's Metaphysics and Its Influence	136
14. The Neglect of Relative Predicates in Modern Philosophy	151
15. Kant's Traditionalism	170

CONTENTS

16. Schopenhauer's Synthesis of East and West: The Worst of Two Worlds	189
17. The Unity of Opposites in Hegel and Schelling	195
18. Kierkegaard on Subjectivity and Freedom	212
19. Marxism and Metaphysics	219
20. Nietzsche's "Death of God" and Deification of Causality	234
21. Lotze, Fechner, Cournot, and Other Nineteenth-Century Forerunners of Process Metaphysics	246
 Part Four: Recent or Contemporary (European) Philosophers
22. Russell and Whitehead: A Comparison	255
23. Husserl and Whitehead on the Concrete	269
24. Mind and Matter in Ryle, Ayer, and Croce	283
25. Reflections on Wittgenstein	293
26. Karl Popper on Whitehead	306
27. Husserl's Most Famous (and Heretical) Disciple	323
28. Sartre: Philosopher, Novelist, Playwright, Political Writer	332
29. Merleau-Ponty from an Anglo-American Perspective	339
30. Summary of Insights and Oversights	364
Index of Topics	381
Index of Persons	389