

Preface ix
Notes on terms used xi
Chronology xv

PART ONE

Analysis

Chapter I

Why was Hitler allowed to gain power? 3

a The historical background 3

b The psychological background 8

Chapter II

How the various sections of society reacted to Hitler's rise 10

a Aristocrats and landowners 10

b The armed forces 11

c The upper-middle classes 13

d Finance, trade and industry 15

e The Evangelical Churches 16

f The Roman Catholic Church 18

g The lower-middle classes 19

h Peasants 20

i Workers 21

j Women 23

k Youth 23

l Conclusion 25

Chapter III

The development of the Widerstand 29

a Aristocrats and landowners 29

b The armed forces 30

c The obere Mittelstand 33

d Finance, trade and industry 35

e The Evangelical Churches 37

f The Roman Catholic Church 42

g The untere Mittelstand 45
h Peasants 46
i Workers 47
j Women 52
k Youth 54
l Conclusion 56

Chapter IV

Modes of Widerstand 59

a Terminology 59
b Suicide 60
c Emigration 60
d Hibernation 62
e Unobtrusive or minor obstruction 63
f Strikes and sabotage 66
g Undermining from within 67
h Arguing for a change of policy 68
i Planning for a post-war Germany 69
j Actively helping the enemy 70
k Organising revolution or assassination 74

Chapter V

The difficulties of the Widerstand 77

a The apparatus of repression 77
b The military oath 81
c The stab-in-the-back trauma 83
d Murder as a last resort and an elusive possibility 86
e Help from outside 90

Chapter VI

The aims of the Widerstand 97

a Communist aims 97
b Non-Communist aims 99
c Points on which there was agreement 101
d Points on which there was disagreement 103
e Idealists or realists? 108

Chapter VII

The West and the Widerstand 111

PART TWO Introduction 121

A Portrait Gallery
1 Georg Elser 122
2 Henning von Tresckow and Fabian von Schlabrendorff 124
3 Claus Philipp Maria Schenck, Graf von
Stauffenberg 132
4 Ludwig Beck 142

5	Günther von Kluge	149
6	Wilhelm Canaris	152
7	Hans Oster	160
8	Arthur Nebe	164
9	Carl Goerdeler	166
10	Ernst Freiherr von Weizsäcker	172
11	Adam Freiherr von Trott zu Solz	179
12	Helmuth James Graf von Moltke	187
13	Julius Leber	195
14	Wilhelm Leuschner	200
15	Adolf Reichwein	203
16	Anton Saefkow	206
17	Harro Schulze-Boysen	209
18	Martin Niemöller	212
19	Dietrich Bonhoeffer	216
20	Bishop Konrad Graf von Preysing	225
21	Bernhard Lichtenberg	229
22	Franz Jägerstätter	231
23	'The White Rose'	234
24	Kurt Gerstein	238

PART THREE
Six Questions

- | | | |
|---|---|-----|
| 1 | In what circumstances, if at all, does an individual have a right – or even a duty – to seek to overthrow by violence the government of his or her country? | 245 |
| 2 | What is the right relationship between statesmen and soldiers? | 246 |
| 3 | Does anyone who lives under an evil régime inevitably acquire some share of guilt for its misdeeds? | 248 |
| 4 | Has the nation-state outlived its usefulness? | 250 |
| 5 | What did the Widerstand achieve? | 253 |
| 6 | Has the Widerstand a lesson for today? | 254 |

Annex A Numbers 255

Annex B Statements made committing the American and British Governments as to the treatment of Germany after Unconditional Surrender 1943–5 260

Annex C Did the British and Americans regard the Germans as 'collectively guilty'? 262

Notes 267

Index 295