

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Preface	xi
Introduction	xiii
1 Three Indeterminacies	1
W. V. Quine
2 A Central Problem for a Speech-Dispositional Account of Logic and Language	17
Alan Berger
Comment on Berger	36
3 Quine on Underdetermination	38
Lars Bergström
Comment on Bergström	53
4 Carnap, Quine and the Rejection of Intuition	55
Richard Creath
Comment on Creath	67
5 Meaning, Truth and Evidence	68
Donald Davidson
Comment on Davidson	80
6 Quine	81
Burton Dreben
Comment on Dreben	96
7 Indeterminacy and Mental States	98
Dagfinn Føllesdal
Comment on Føllesdal	110
8 Rebuilding the Ship while Sailing on the Water	111
Susan Haack
Comment on Haack	128
9 Natural Kinds	129
Ian Hacking
Comment on Hacking	142

10	Immanent and Transcendent Approaches to the Theory of Meaning	144
	Gilbert Harman
	Comment on Harman	158
11	Quine as a Member of the Tradition of the Universality of Language	159
	Jaakko Hintikka
	Comment on Hintikka	176
12	The Refutation of Indeterminacy	177
	Jerrold Katz
	Comment on Katz	198
13	Why and How to Naturalize Epistemology	200
	Dirk Koppelberg
	Comment on Koppelberg	212
14	Holism and Naturalized Epistemology Confronted with the Problem of Truth	213
	Henri Lauener
	Comment on Lauener	229
15	A Backward Look at Quine's Animadversions on Modalities	230
	Ruth Barcan Marcus
	Comment on Marcus	244
16	Is Existence What Existential Quantification Expresses?	245
	Alex Orenstein
	Comment on Orenstein	271
17	Genetic Explanation in The Roots of Reference	273
	Charles Parsons
	Comment on Parsons	291
18	Doing Without Meaning	294
	Anthony Quinton
	Comment on Quinton	309
19	Two Conceptions of Philosophy	310
	P. F. Strawson
	Comment on Strawson	319
20	Quine's Physicalism	321
	Barry Stroud
	Comment on Stroud	334
21	Learning and Meaning	336
	Joseph S. Ullian
	Comment on Ullian	347
	Bibliography of Quine's Works Cited in Comments	348
	Index	349