

Contents

Preface	v
List of abbreviations	x
Chapter 1
Introduction	1
1. Subject matter and aims	1
2. Roadmap	12
Chapter 2
Modals and ellipsis in the architecture of grammar	16
1. Towards the contribution of modal predicates in syntax	16
2. The main-verb approach against Aux	18
2.1. Concepts of complementation: Ross (1969)	18
2.2. Contra a wide Aux category: Pullum and Wilson (1977)	22
2.3. On the role of fixed-points for verb movement: Baker (1991)	28
3. The functional-category analysis	33
3.1. Moving have and be : Emonds (1970/1976)	33
3.2. Deriving Infl for modals: Roberts (1985)	37
3.3. Morphological intricacies and emerging economies: Emonds (1994)	40
3.4. Minimalist questions: Roberts (1998), Chomsky (1995)	43
4. Theories of specialized functional projections	46
4.1. Correlates of meaning and structure: Jackendoff (1972)	46
4.2. Adverbs and functional heads: Cinque (1999)	50
4.3. On the status of epistemic modals: Drubig (2001)	53
4.4. Towards the connection of tense: Stowell (2004a)	58
Chapter 3
Towards an account of VP ellipsis	66
1. Introduction	66
2. Identity (in)equations as conditions for ellipsis	68
2.1. Semantic conditions and alphabetic variance: Sag (1976, 1980)	68

2.2.	Syntactic equilibrium and dependency theory: Fiengo and May (1994)	72
2.3.	Extensions on full-fledged E-sites: Kennedy (1997), Postal (2001)	77
2.4.	The identity condition transferred to PF: Tancredi (1992)	82
3.	On the track of VPE characteristics – Syntactic licensing	87
3.1.	Introduction	87
3.2.	Silence but with method: Hankamer and Sag (1976), Pullum (2000)	89
3.3.	The licensing question: Lobeck (1995)	96
3.4.	Syntactically represented anaphora: Wasow (1972, 1979)	100
4.	Towards the role of the computational system	104
4.1.	Issues and desiderata in a theory of VPE: Johnson (2001)	104
4.2.	Remarks on Minimalism and the concept of phases	110
4.3.	A derivational model applied to ellipsis: Winkler (2003)	113

Chapter 4

Modals and ellipsis in diachronic change	122
1.	Towards a diachronic proposal	122
1.1.	Brief introduction to reanalysis theory	122
1.2.	The short-distance reanalysis hypothesis	125
2.	The change	130
3.	Analyzing the PPCME2 data	132
3.1.	Some quantitative aspects	132
3.2.	Licensers and configurations for the VECs	135
3.3.	A licensing generalization for Middle and Modern English	136
4.	More on the nature of VP ellipsis in Middle English	142
4.1.	On the status of the ellipsis	142
4.2.	On the categorial status of the licenser	147
5.	Directionals and the Pr projection	150
5.1.	A feature of Middle English modals	150
5.2.	Directionals and the feature-based implementation	152
6.	Conclusion	154
	Appendix: The Choice of subcorpora from the PPCME2	155

Chapter 5

Modals and ellipsis in synchrony	161
1.	Setting the stage	161
2.	Raising vs. basic aspects of the modals in English	164
3.	Exploring the root vs. epistemic distinction	166

3.1.	Scope asymmetries relative to functional material	166
3.1.1.	Negation	166
3.1.2.	Epistemic modals and tense	169
3.2.	Quantifiers	173
3.3.	Finiteness and non-assertive factors	179
3.3.1.	The finiteness requirement on epistemics	179
3.3.2.	Arguments from non-assertive contexts	181
3.3.3.	Further morphosyntactic evidence	183
4.	Effects of modal force	185
4.1.	Additional scope asymmetries	185
4.2.	Further evidence for necessity	186
4.3.	Morphosyntax and agreement	188
5.	VPE licensing as interpretability	191
5.1.	On the epistemic-ellipsis restriction	192
5.2.	Further arguments for semantically motivated licensing in C_{HL}	194
5.2.1.	The counterfoil evidence of pro-forms	194
5.2.2.	The one-LF issue in MLE derivations	197
5.2.3.	Aspects of theta-theory	197
5.3.	Modal force with ellipsis	199
5.4.	Simplification: An interpretation-based account of licensing	201
5.4.1.	Towards interpretation in licensing	201
5.4.2.	Modal phrase structure: An approximation	202
5.4.3.	Locality and reduction	204
5.4.4.	Interpretation takes over	207
5.4.5.	Observations on anchoring the VP in MLE	213
5.5.	Independent evidence for VPE licensing anchored to interpretability	216
6.	Summary	218
Chapter 6
Conclusion		225
1.	Main results	225
2.	Modals	225
3.	Ellipsis	227
4.	Modals and ellipsis	229
References		232
Index		257