

Table of Contents

Introductory summary	1
Chapter I
Conventional meaning: The pretheoretical intuition
§ 1 Conventional meaning vs. natural meaning	5
§ 2 Conventional meaning vs. speaker's meaning	7
§ 3 Conventional meaning and correct understanding	9
§ 4 Correct understanding: The conventional result principle	11
§ 5 Conventional systems evolving into languages	13
§ 6 Communication: Redistributing situational roles	15
§ 7 The strategy of language description	16
Chapter II
Compliance with rules
§ 8 The weak Hart analysis of rule-guided behavior	18
§ 9 Why dismiss the 'internal aspect'?	21
§ 10 Hart attacks repelled	23
§ 11 An attractive alternative: Lewis conventions	26
§ 12 No rigid problem-solving	30
§ 13 Choice rules	34
§ 14 Knowledge of conventions	36
§ 15 Can meaning sneak in via common knowledge?	43
§ 16 Conventional make-ups and how to detect them	45
Chapter III
A case for utterance meaning: NIVEAU zero
§ 17 A plea for case studies	52
§ 18 The first utterance meaning rules	55
§ 19 Background conventions and suspected signals	59
§ 20 Strengthening the description	61
§ 21 The meaning of circumstances	64
§ 22 Theoretical fruitfulness	65

Chapter IV

Conventional utterance meaning

§ 23	Language use: Conventional behavior calling for a special kind of description	68
§ 24	Conventional utterance meaning defined	69
§ 25	Neptune: Conventional perturbations and their best explanation	72
§ 26	Expressions and expressive power	75
§ 27	The diversity of language	78
§ 28	The theoretical character of the speech act of reference	81

Chapter V

Against intentionalism

§ 29	Preliminaries	84
§ 30	Ignored motives for making constative utterances	85
§ 31	Gricean intentions: Irrelevant and unlikely	89
§ 32	Speakers' meaning and conventional meaning: Empirically connected	91
§ 33	The Thomistic fallacy	94
§ 34	Genitivus subjectivus and genitivus objectivus	96
§ 35	Declarations of meaning	98

Chapter VI

The same case for sentence meaning: NIVEAU

§ 36	The new problem	100
§ 37	Grouping signs by positing new entities	103
§ 38	Some semantic features: Ambiguity, negation, anaphora	108

Chapter VII

Some results for sentence meaning

§ 39	The point of having sentence meanings	114
§ 40	Sentence meaning defined	115
§ 41	Two different tasks in the study of sentence meaning	116
§ 42	The theoretical character of sentence meaning	119
§ 43	Sentence meaning is conceptually irreducible	123

Epilogue
§ 44 Rules of language	133
Appendix I: Complete description of NIVEAU zero	137
Appendix II: Complete description of NIVEAU	141
Bibliography	145
Subject Index	149