

Contents

Preface	vii
1 Introduction	1
2 Varieties of Realism	11
2.1 Minimal Realism	11
2.2 Reflecting on Minimal Realism	21
2.3 Realism, Idealism and Empiricism	25
2.4 Realism, Relativism and Intersubjectivity	28
3 Instrumentalism and Meaning Scepticism	35
3.1 Quine's Arguments for the Indeterminacy of Translation	35
3.2 Setting up a Predictive Sentence Machine	40
3.3 Indeterminacy of Function and Meaning	45
3.4 Instrumentalism and the Revisability of Logic	55
4 Quine's Naturalized Empiricism	60
4.1 Quine's Epistemology	60
4.2 Ontological Relativity and Disquotation	70
4.3 Quine's Version of Realism	75
4.4 Should Empiricism be Naturalized?	82
5 The Mona Lisa Mosaic	86
5.1 Semantic Holism	86
5.2 Holism and Indeterminacy: the Mosaic Analogy	92
5.3 Holism, Indeterminacy and Language	98
5.4 Can We Restore Determinacy?	102

6	The Slide into the Abyss	112
6.1	The Incompatibility of Realism and Meaning Scepticism	112
6.2	Thoroughgoing Pragmatism	121
6.3	Wittgenstein and Pragmatism	129
6.4	Empiricism and Platonism	134
7	The Dissolving Mirror	143
7.1	Wittgenstein's Hostility to Mirroring Realism	143
7.2	Explanation and the Absolute Conception	149
7.3	Kripke and Norms	160
8	Interpretations and Misinterpretations	167
8.1	Speech Acts and Language Games	167
8.2	Wittgenstein and Anti-Realism	178
9	Interests, Activities and Meanings	192
9.1	Proof and New Concepts	192
9.2	Conceptual Change and Determinacy of Sense	196
9.3	Other Forms of Life?	206
9.4	Modal Realism	210
9.5	Facts about Meaning	216
	Notes	229
	Bibliography	240
	Index	245