

Contents

|                                       |         |
|---------------------------------------|---------|
| Acknowledgments                       | page ix |
| Introduction                          | 1       |
| 1. Structure                          | 7       |
| 1. Structureless propositions         | 9       |
| 2. Structured intensions              | 16      |
| 3. The structure of propositions      | 29      |
| 4. Two sorts of sententialism         | 37      |
| 5. Tacit beliefs                      | 47      |
| 2. Some cognitive theories of content | 58      |
| 1. A problem for Fregeanism           | 61      |
| 2. An obvious solution reconsidered   | 68      |
| 3. Sense and similarity               | 78      |
| 4. Conceptual role                    | 85      |
| 5. Conclusion                         | 102     |
| 3. Ascribing attitudes                | 106     |
| 1. Russellianism                      | 108     |
| 2. Saying what others think           | 133     |
| 3. Worries about words                | 154     |
| 4. Applications and amplifications    | 173     |
| 4. Some issues in logic and semantics | 197     |
| 1. Quantification and Leibniz's law   | 199     |
| 2. Demonstratives and reflexivity     | 208     |

|                          |     |
|--------------------------|-----|
| 3. Belief retention      | 220 |
| 4. Truth and RAMs        | 244 |
| 5. Reference and content | 251 |
| Conclusion               | 264 |
| Bibliography             | 267 |
| Index                    | 273 |