

Contents

Introduction . . . . .	1
1. Historical Roots of Speech Act Theory
Barry Smith: Towards a history of speech act theory . . . . .	29
John F. Crosby: Speech act theory and phenomenology . . . . .	62
2. Speech Act Theory between Semantics and Pragmatics
Armin Burkhardt: Speech act theory — the decline of a paradigm . . . . .	91
Gabriel Falkenberg: Searle on sincerity . . . . .	129
Eckard Rolf: On the concept of action in illocutionary logic . . . . .	147
3. Speech Act Theory and Intentionality
Robert M. Harnish: Speech acts and intentionality . . . . .	169
Frank W. Liedtke: Representational semantics and illocutionary acts . . . . .	194
Wilhelm Baumgartner/Jörg Klawitter: Intentionality of perception. An inquiry concerning J. R. Searle's conception of intentionality with appeal to Husserl . . . . .	210
4. Meaning
Jerrold J. Katz: Literal meaning and logical theory . . . . .	229
Michael J. Evans/Rainer Wimmer: Searle's theory of proper names, from a linguistic point of view . . . . .	259
Carlo Marletti: Congruence and modulation in propositional attitudes . . . . .	279
5. Theory of Metaphor and Fictional Discourse
Armin Burkhardt: Searle on metaphor . . . . .	303
Anne Reboul: The logical status of fictional discourse: what Searle's speaker can't say to his hearer . . . . .	336
6. Philosophy of Mind and Cognitive Science
Dieter Münch: Minds, brains and cognitive science . . . . .	367
Manfred Bierwisch: Perspectives on mind, brain, and language: Linguistics as a cognitive science or Touring the Chinese room again . . . . .	391