

Contents

Acknowledgments 7

1. Introduction 11

2. Music of Corruption: Jazz as Social Threat in the Early Twenties 22

3. “Some Finer Thing”: Jazz Amid the Culture Wars
of the Late Twenties 39

4. The Market of Music: Jazz and the Great Depression in the Harlem Renaissance 58

5. White Jazz: A Primitive Commodity 74

6. Defining a Nation: Jazz and American Identity in the Early Forties 93

7. Music of Contradictions: Reconciling U.S. Domestic and Foreign Identities 109

8. “Gin, Jazz, and Dreams”: Cultivating the Hipster Aesthetic in Ellison, Mailer, and Beaumont 122

9. A Racial Paradise: The Ambiguity of Identity in The Horn by John Clellon Holmes and
On The Road by Jack Kerouac 139

10. Conclusion 164

Notes 171

Works Cited 183

Index 189