Contents

List of Figures and Tables viii
Acknowledgments ix
General Preface xi

1 Introduction 1

2 Modal Logic 9
2.1 Why modality is important to logic and to semantics 9
2.2 Some basic ideas from modal logic 11
2.2.1 Frames and models 11
2.2.2 Validity 18
2.2.3 Possible worlds 20
2.2.4 Axiomatic systems 24
2.3 A linguistically realistic version of modal logic 29
2.3.1 The Simple Modal Logic Hypothesis 30
2.3.2 Necessity and possibility 32
2.3.3 Accessibility relations 33
2.3.4 Problems with the Simple Modal Logic Hypothesis 38
2.3.5 The indexicality of modals 40
2.3.6 Summary 45
2.4 Looking ahead 45

3 Major Linguistic Theories of Modality 47
3.1 The work of Angelika Kratzer 47
3.1.1 From modal logic to relative modality 48
3.1.2 Kratzer (1977) 50
3.1.3 Ordering semantics 56
3.2 Modality in dynamic logic 85
3.2.1 The dynamic view of meaning 87
3.2.2 Proto-dynamic logic 91
3.2.3 Dynamic modal operators 93
3.2.4 Expectation patterns 99

3.2.5 Evaluation of dynamic semantics for modality 102
3.3 Modality in cognitive and functional linguistics 105
3.3.1 Modality as representing force dynamics 110
3.3.2 The cognitive-functional response to formal semantic analyses of modality 116
3.3.3 Subjectivity and intersubjectivity 122
3.3.4 Evaluation of ideas about modality in cognitive and functional linguistics 129
3.4 Looking ahead 131

4 Sentential Modality 133
4.1 Semantic categories of sentential modality 134
4.1.1 Epistemic, priority, and dynamic modals 135
4.1.2 Other classifications 138
4.1.3 Modal force 141
4.1.4 Syntactic representation 143
4.2 Issues in the semantics of epistemic modality 144
4.2.1 The non-truth conditional analysis 145
4.2.2 Evidentiality 167
4.2.3 Performativity 172
4.2.4 Relativism 177
4.3 Issues in the semantics of priority modality 184
4.3.1 Sub-varieties of priority modality 185
4.3.2 The argument structure of priority modals 187
4.3.3 Performativity 188
4.4 Issues in the semantics of dynamic modality 196
4.4.1 Volitional modality 196
4.4.2 Quantificational modality 213
4.5 Looking ahead 220

5 Modality and Other Intensional Categories 221
5.1 Modality and time 221
5.1.1 The temporal orientation of modal sentences 222
5.1.2 The modality of tense 236
5.1.3 The modality of aspect 243

5.2 Conditionals 247
5.2.1 The relation between conditionals and modality 247
5.2.2 Conditionals and truth conditions 254
5.3 Modality, mood, and evidentiality 257
5.3.1 Mood 258
5.3.2 Evidentiality 263
5.4 Looking forward 265

Bibliography 267
Index 285