

Contents

Preface	ix
Chapter 1 An Initial Survey	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Constitutive and evidential criteria	2
1.3 The bodily criterion	2
1.4 The brain criterion	3
1.5 The physical criterion	5
1.6 Objections to the physical criterion	8
1.7 The memory criterion	10
1.8 The psychological continuity criterion	12
1.9 The circularity objection	13
1.10 The reduplication argument	14
1.11 The revised psychological continuity criterion	16
1.12 The multiple occupancy thesis	17
1.13 The simple view	18
1.14 The determinacy thesis	21
1.15 What matters in survival	23
1.16 Parfit's argument	25
Chapter 2 Locke	30
2.1 Introduction	30
2.2 The Principium individuationis	34
2.3 Substantial identity	35
2.4 Plants, animals and men	39
2.5 Personal identity and consciousness	41
2.6 'Person': a forensic term	48

2.7 Consciousness	52
2.8 A much disputed passage	54
Chapter 3 Leibniz, Butler and Reid	57
3.1 Introduction	57
3.2 Discourse on metaphysics	57
3.3 The New Essays	60
3.4 Butler and Reid	64
3.5 The circularity objection	68
3.6 The Butler–Reid–Shoemaker objection	71
3.7 Conclusion	76
Chapter 4 Hume	77
4.1 Introduction	77
4.2 Our idea of identity	80
4.3 The reification of perceptions	82
4.4 Of soul and self	88
4.5 The source of the mistake	91
4.6 Objections to Hume	96
4.7 Conclusion	102
Chapter 5 Identity and Personal Identity	104
5.1 Introduction	104
5.2 A puzzle	105
5.3 A solution	106
5.4 An alternative solution	113
5.5 The simple and complex views	116
5.6 Reductionism and non-reductionism	118
5.7 Persons as endurers or persons as perdurers?	122
5.8 Conclusion	127
Chapter 6 Identity and Determinacy	128
6.1 Introduction	128
6.2 The determinacy thesis	128
6.3 Types of indeterminacy	130
6.4 Indeterminacy as semantic indecision	132

6.5	Indeterminacy and identity over time	133
6.6	Fuzzy objects	134
6.7	Indeterminacy and brain transplants	137
6.8	Indeterminacy and Methuselah	139
6.9	The determinacy thesis and personal perdurance	140
6.10	Objections to personal perdurance	141
6.11	Inconstancy in modal predication	145
6.12	Conclusion	148
Chapter 7 The Reduplication Problem		149
7.1	Introduction: The generality of the argument	149
7.2	The Only $x$ and $y$ principle	152
7.3	The ship of Theseus	154
7.4	Wiggins's argument	156
7.5	An alternative argument	159
7.6	Further objections	160
7.7	A counter-argument countered	161
7.8	Cambridge change	162
7.9	The Only $x$ and $y$ principle reformulated	164
7.10	The multiple occupancy thesis	164
7.11	Conclusion	168
Chapter 8 Quasi-Memory		169
8.1	Introduction	169
8.2	The circularity objection	171
8.3	Quasi-memory	173
8.4	Quasi-memory and privileged access	177
8.5	The content of quasi-memory	180
8.6	M-connectedness and personal identity	185
Chapter 9 Parfit and what Matters in Survival		192
9.1	Introduction	192
9.2	Identity and survival	192
9.3	What does matter	194
9.4	Fission and survival	195
9.5	Assessment of the argument	196
9.6	Anti-Parfit	198

9.7 The Only $x$ and $y$ principle revisited	201
9.8 Parfitian survival and trivial facts	203
Chapter 10 The Self and the Future	211
10.1 Introduction	211
10.2 Two puzzle cases	212
10.3 Body-switching?	215
10.4 Mind-swapping?	220
10.5 Identity and determinacy	226
10.6 Conclusion	232
Chapter 11 Against the Closest Continuer Theory	233
11.1 Introduction	233
11.2 The Only $x$ and $y$ principle revisited	234
11.3 The Vienna Circle	241
11.4 The self and the future	242
11.5 Fission	246
Bibliography	255
Index	260