

TABLE OF CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	XXI
Preface to the First Edition	XXIII
Preface to the Third Edition	XXXIV
List of Abbreviations	XLIX

Introduction

1. The Phenomenological Movement Defined	1
2. Unrelated Phenomenologies	6
a. Extra-Philosophical Phenomenologies	7
b. Philosophical Phenomenologies	11
3. Preview	19

Part One / The Preparatory Phase

I. FRANZ BRENTANO (1838–1917): FORERUNNER OF THE PHENOMENOLOGICAL MOVEMENT

1. Brentano's Place in the History of Phenomenology	27
---	----

2. His Purpose: A Scientific Reformation of Philosophy	28
3. A New Psychology as the Foundation for Scientific Philosophy	31
4. A New Type of Empiricism	33
5. Descriptive Psychology versus Genetic Psychology	34
6. A New Type of Experience: Inner Perception versus Introspection	35
7. "Intentionality": The Basic Psychological Phenomenon	36
8. A "Natural" Classification of Psychological Acts	38
9. A Fundamental Law of Psychological Phenomena	39
10. The Awareness of Time	40
11. An Analogue of Self-Evidence as the Basis for Ethical Knowledge	40
12. Brentano's Fight against "Fictitious Entities"	43
13. How Far Was Brentano a Representative of "Psychologism"?	44
Selective Bibliography	49

II. CARL STUMPF (1848-1936): FOUNDER OF EXPERIMENTAL PHENOMENOLOGY

1. Stumpf's Place in the History of Phenomenology	51
2. The Role of Phenomenology in His Work	52
3. General Characteristics of His Phenomenology	55
a. The Subject Matter of Phenomenology Consists of Primary and Secondary Phenomena	55
b. Phenomenology is a Neutral Science or Pre-Science (Vorwissenschaft)	56
c. Phenomenology is the First of the Neutral Pre-Sciences	57
d. Phenomenology is Not an Independent Discipline for Specialists, but Rather the First Layer in the Study of Every Established Science	57
e. Phenomenology, while a Descriptive Science, has to be Studied by All Suitable Methods, Including the Experimental One	57
4. Some Concrete Phenomenological Contributions	58
a. The Distinction between Dependent and Independent Parts and the Experience of Substance and Attribute	58

b. The Experience of Causal Nexus	59
c. The Experience of "Feel-Sensations" (Gefühlsempfindungen)	59
d. The Discovery of Structural Laws among Empirical Materials Not Based upon Induction	59
e. The Discovery of the Sachverhalt	59
5. The Relationship of Stumpf's and Husserl's Phenomenologies	60
Excursus: Stumpf's Phenomenology and William James's Psychology	62
Selective Bibliography	65

Part Two / The German Phase of the Movement

III. THE PURE PHENOMENOLOGY OF EDMUND HUSSERL (1859–1938)

A. Introductory	69
B. Constants in Husserl's Conception of Philosophy	71
1. The Ideal of Rigorous Science	72
2. Philosophic Radicalism	76
3. The Ethos of Radical Autonomy	78
4. The Wonder of All Wonders: Subjectivity	81
5. Husserl's Personality and His Philosophy	81
C. Variables in the Development of Husserl's Philosophy	84
1. The Pre-Phenomenological Period	84
a. The Critique of Psychologism	86
b. The Conception of a Pure Logic	88
Excursus: Meinong's Gegenstandstheorie and Husserl's Logic	89
2. The Beginnings of Phenomenology as the Subjective Correlate of Pure Logic	92
a. Husserl's Semantics	95
b. Husserl's Doctrine of Universals (Essences)	95
c. The Intentionality of Consciousness	97

Excursus: William James's Significance for Husserl's Phenomenology	100
d. Phenomenological Intuiting (Anschauung and Wesensschau)	104
3. Phenomenology Becomes "First Philosophy"	105
Excursus: Wilhelm Dilthey and Edmund Husserl	109
4. The Birth of the Phenomenological Movement and the Beginnings of Transcendental Phenomenology	111
a. Self-Givenness – Phenomenology and Positivism	114
b. Phenomenology of Perception and Self-Evidence	116
c. The Phenomenological Reduction	118
Excursus: Santayana's Ultimate Scepticism Compared with Husserl's Phenomenological Reduction	123
d. The Phenomenological Residue: Ego Cogito Cogitata Mea	124
e. Phenomenological Idealism	126
Excursus: Husserl and Josiah Royce	128
f. Phenomenological Constitution and the Consciousness of Time	130
g. Phenomenology and Psychology	132
5. Toward a System of Transcendental Phenomenology	134
Intersubjectivity and Transcendental Monadology	139
6. The Last Beginning	141
The Idea of the Life-World (Lebenswelt)	144
D. In Place of an Appraisal	147
Postscript 1980	148
Selective Bibliography	163

IV. THE ORIGINAL PHENOMENOLOGICAL MOVEMENT

A. The Phenomenological Circles	166
1. The Göttingen Circle	166
2. The Munich Circle	169
B. Alexander Pfänder (1870–1941): From Phenomenological

Psychology to Phenomenological Philosophy	170
1. Pfänder's Place in the Phenomenological Movement	170
2. The Place of Phenomenology in His Philosophy	172
3. His Conception of Phenomenology	174
a. Phenomenological Psychology	175
b. Phenomenological Philosophy	176
4. Examples of His Phenomenology	180
a. Directed Sentiments (Gesinnungen)	181
b. Basic and Empirical Essences	182
c. The Perception of Oughtness	184
5. Concluding Remarks	185
Selective Bibliography	186
6. Pfänder's Following: Maximilian Beck, Gerda Walther, Herbert Spiegelberg, Josef Stürmann	187
C. Adolf Reinach (1883–1917): Phenomenological Ontology of Essences	191
1. Reinach's Place in the Phenomenological Movement	191
2. His Conception of Phenomenology	193
3. Illustrations of His Phenomenology	197
a. A Theory of Social Acts	197
b. Essential Laws Concerning Legal Entities	198
Selective Bibliography	200
D. Moritz Geiger (1880–1937): From Phenomenological Esthetics toward Metaphysics	200
1. Geiger's Conception of Phenomenology	203
2. Illustrations of His Phenomenological Analyses	206
a. Esthetic Enjoyment	207
b. Existential Depth	208
c. The Unconscious	209
Selective Bibliography	211

E. Hedwig Conrad-Martius (1888–1966): Phenomenology and Reality	212
(by Eberhard Avé-Lallemant)
1. Conrad-Martius's Place in the Phenomenological Movement	212
2. Her Conception of Phenomenology	214
3. The Phenomenon of Reality	215
4. Philosophy of Nature on Phenomenological Foundations	219
5. Toward an Appraisal	221
Selective Bibliography	221
F. Roman Ingarden (1893–1970): Ontological Phenomenology	223
(by Guido K�ung)
1. Ingarden's Place in the Phenomenological Movement	223
2. His Conception of Phenomenology	224
3. A Phenomenologist's Analysis of the Idealism-Realism Controversy	227
4. The Phenomenology of the Work of Art	229
5. Toward an Appraisal	231
Selective Bibliography	232
G. Other Members of the G�ttingen and Munich Circles	233
1. August Gallinger (1871–1959)	233
2. Aloys Fischer (1880–1937)	233
3. Theodor Conrad (1881–1969)	234
4. Wilhelm Schapp (1884–1965)	234
5. Kurt Stavenhagen (1885–1951)	234
6. Dietrich von Hildebrand (1889–1977)	235
7. Hans Lipps (1889–1941)	237
8. Adolf Grimme (1889–1963)	237

9. Jean Hering (1890–1966)	237
10. Edith Stein (1891–1942)	238
11. Alexandre Koyré (1892–1964)	239
H. The Freiburg Group	240
1. The New Setting	240
2. Husserl's Collaborators: Ludwig Landgrebe, Eugen Fink	241
3. Other Husserl Associates: Oskar Becker, Fritz Kaufmann, Ludwig Ferdinand Clauss, Arnold Metzger	247
4. The Central Field: Wilhelm Szilasi, Hans Reiner	249
5. The Periphery: Aron Gurwitsch, Emmanuel Levinas, Theodor Celms, Christopher V. Salmon, Marvin Farber, Dorion Cairns	251
6. Radiations: Felix Kaufmann, Alfred Schutz, Jan Patočka	254
7. Retrospect	257

V. THE PHENOMENOLOGY OF ESSENCES:
MAX SCHELER (1874–1928)

1. Max Scheler's Place in the Phenomenological Movement	268
2. His Basic Concerns	270
3. Phenomenology in the Development of His Philosophy	273
4. His Conception of Phenomenology	277
a. The Doctrine of the "Phenomenological Controversy" (phänome- nologischer Streit)	280
b. The Idols of Self-Knowledge	281
c. The Phenomenon of Resistance as the Criterion of Reality	281
d. Scheler's Phenomenological Reduction	283
5. The Place of Phenomenology in His Philosophy	283
6. His Phenomenology in Action	288
a. Value and Oughtness	288
b. Cognitive Emotion	292
c. Ethical Absolutism and Relativity	293
d. Sympathy	295
e. Knowledge of Other Minds	296

f. Religion	297
7. Toward an Appraisal of Scheler as a Phenomenologist	300
8. Scheler's Following: Hendrik Stoker, Paul-Ludwig Landsberg	301
Selective Bibliography	304

VI. PHENOMENOLOGY IN THE CRITICAL ONTOLOGY OF NICOLAI HARTMANN (1882–1950)

1. Hartmann's Relation to the Phenomenological Movement	306
2. His Philosophical Objective: Critical Ontology	307
3. The Role of Phenomenology in His Philosophical Development	313
4. His Version of Phenomenology	319
5. Illustrations of His Phenomenology	323
a. "Metaphysics" of Knowledge	323
b. The Givenness of Reality	325
c. The Discovery of Value and the Narrowness of Value Consciousness	327
d. Activated Ideals (Aktuales Seinsollen)	328
6. Toward an Appraisal of Hartmann's Phenomenology	329
7. Hartmann's Following and Phenomenology	331
Selective Bibliography	333

VII. MARTIN HEIDEGGER (1889–1976) AS A PHENOMENOLOGIST

1. On Understanding Heidegger	336
2. His Place in the History of Phenomenology	339
3. The Basic Theme: The Quest for Being, Truth, and Time	347
4. The Development of Heidegger's Thought of Being	353
a. The Preparatory Period	353
b. The Phenomenological Period	358
c. The Turn (Kehre)	371

5.	His Conception of Phenomenology	379
	a. Hermeneutic Phenomenology	380
	b. Hermeneutics in Action	386
	c. "The Idea of Phenomenology" in the 1927 Lectures	397
	d. Phenomenology in Heidegger's Later Philosophy	401
6.	Toward an Appraisal of Heidegger's Phenomenology	407
	a. To What Extent was Heidegger a Phenomenologist?	408
	b. Strengths and Weaknesses of Heidegger's Phenomenology	409
	Selective Bibliography	419

Part Three / The French Phase of the Movement

	Introductory	425
--	--------------	-----

VIII. THE BEGINNINGS OF FRENCH PHENOMENOLOGY

1.	The Soil	428
2.	The Receptive Phase	431
3.	Phenomenology and Existentialism	436
4.	Phenomenology and Hegelianism	440
5.	Phenomenological Existentialism and Literature	442
6.	Phenomenological Existentialism and Marxism	444

IX. GABRIEL MARCEL (1889–1974) AS A PHENOMENOLOGIST

1.	Marcel's Relations to the Phenomenological Movement	448
2.	His Concern	451
3.	The Development of His Philosophy	454
4.	His Conception of Phenomenology	460
5.	His Phenomenology in Action	462

6. The Phenomenology of Having	464
7. Concluding Observations	466
Selective Bibliography	468

X. THE PHENOMENOLOGY OF JEAN-PAUL SARTRE (1905–1980)

1. On Understanding Sartre	470
2. His Place in the Phenomenological Movement	473
3. His Central Theme: Freedom versus Being	478
4. The Role of Phenomenology in the Development of His Thought	481
a. The Pre-Phenomenological Period	482
b. Phenomenological Psychology	484
c. Phenomenological Ontology	488
d. Phenomenological Existentialism	493
e. Existentialist Marxism	496
5. His Conception of Phenomenology	499
a. The Common Ground	499
b. Distinguishing Characteristics	501
6. His Phenomenology in Action	516
a. Imagination	517
b. The Magic of the Emotions	519
c. Absence and Nothingness	521
d. The Gaze (regard)	523
e. The Body	524
7. Phenomenology in Dialectical Reason	526
8. Toward an Appraisal of Sartre's Phenomenology	528
9. His Following: Simone de Beauvoir, Francis Jeanson, Benny Lévy	530
Selective Bibliography	534

XI. THE PHENOMENOLOGICAL PHILOSOPHY OF MAURICE MERLEAU-PONTY (1908–1961)

1. Merleau-Ponty's Position in the Phenomenological Movement	537
--	-----

2.	Guiding Themes in His Philosophy	543
3.	The Development of His Phenomenology	546
4.	His Conception of Phenomenology	549
5.	Some Key Chapters from His Phenomenology	556
a.	The Structure of Behavior and the Phenomenology of Gestalt	556
b.	Perception	559
c.	The New Cogito : Being-Within-the-World (Être-au-Monde)	564
d.	Subjectivity and Temporality	566
e.	Conditioned Freedom	568
f.	The Social World – Speech and Language	570
6.	Toward an Appraisal of His Phenomenology	571
7.	The Meaning of His Last Philosophy	574
a.	The New Ontology	576
b.	Ontology and Phenomenology	578
8.	His Following: Claude Lefort, Alphonse de Waelhens	580
	Selective Bibliography	583

XII. PAUL RICOEUR AND SOME ASSOCIATES

A.	Paul Ricoeur (born 1913)	585
1.	His Place in the Phenomenological Movement	586
2.	His Guiding Interests	589
3.	His Development	590
4.	His First Conception of Phenomenology	592
5.	His Phenomenology of the Will	595
6.	His Hermeneutic Turn	597
	Selective Bibliography	599
B.	Mikel Dufrenne (born 1910): Phenomenology of Esthetic Experience	600
	Selective Bibliography	606
C.	Raymond Polin (born 1911): Phenomenology of Values	606

Selective Bibliography	610
-------------------------------	-----

XIII. EMMANUEL LEVINAS (BORN 1906):
PHENOMENOLOGICAL PHILOSOPHY

(by Stephan Strasser)

1. Existential Experiences	612
2. Levinas's Philosophical Development	614
3. Metaphysics Instead of Fundamental Ontology	615
a. War – commercium – History, Need and Desire	615
b. Egoism and Alterity	619
c. Countenance and Ethical Resistance	620
d. Metaphysics of Hospitality	621
e. Freedom Put in Question	622
f. Created from Nothing	623
g. The Verdict about History	624
h. Temporality and Temporalization	625
i. Absolute Future	627
4. Ethics as First Philosophy	629
a. The Other in Relation to Being	629
b. The Ethical Ground of Saying	630
c. The Patience of the Bodily "I"	632
d. Forms of an An-archival Responsibility: the Substitute, the Guarantor, the Atoner for the Other	632
e. Trace and Absolute Past	634
f. Ambiguity of the Trace	636
g. Prophecy	637
h. The Sceptis of Discourse	639
i. The Third and Justice	640
5. Levinas and the Phenomenological Movement	641
Selective Bibliography	648

Part Four / The Geography of the Phenomenological Movement

1. Introductory	653
-----------------	-----

2. The German Area: “Renaissance”?	654
3. France: Continuations and Alternatives	657
4. Italy: Inroads	657
5. Spain: Revival Through Phenomenology	658
6. Latin America: Proliferations	660
7. Portuguese Area: Side Currents	661
8. The British Scene: Ups and Downs	661
9. United States and Canada: Breadth	663
10. Russia: Penetrations	666
11. Eastern Europe: Dialogue	667
12. India: Affinities	667
13. Japan: Resonances	668
14. Assessment	670
a. Today’s Status	670
b. Instead of a Prognosis	671

Part Five / The Essentials of the Phenomenological Method

A. Phenomenology and Phenomenological Method	678
B. The Phenomenological Method as a Protest against Reductionism	679
C. The Steps of the Phenomenological Method	681
1. Investigating Particular Phenomena	682
a. Phenomenological Intuiting	682
Excursus: Does Phenomenology Explore only Subjective Phenomena?	687
b. Phenomenological Analyzing	690
c. Phenomenological Describing	693

2. Investigating General Essences (Eidetic Intuiting)	696
3. Apprehending Essential Relationships	699
4. Watching Modes of Appearing	703
5. Exploring the Constitution of Phenomena in Consciousness	706
6. Suspending Belief in Existence	708
7. Interpreting Concealed Meanings	712
D. In Conclusion	715

Appendices

Chart I: Chronology of the Phenomenological Movement in Germany	722
Chart II: Chronology of the Phenomenological Movement in France	728
Chart III: Chronology of the Phenomenological Movement in the Anglo-American World	733
Index of Subjects, Combined with a Selective Glossary of Phenomenological Terms	736
Index of Names	755

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

	Facing page
1. From FRANZ BRENTANO's manuscripts for his Vienna lectures 1888/89. Photo by his son, Dr. John C. M. Brentano, Highland Park, Illinois. – The entry in brackets is by Oskar Kraus	27
2. Bust of young BRENTANO by Kaspar Zumbusch in the possession of Dr. Brentano, who also kindly supplied the photo	28
3. Photo of a lost oil portrait of FRANZ BRENTANO by Rudolf Stumpf, son of Carl Stumpf. Copyright Erna Stumpf, Göttingen	44
4. CARL STUMPF. Drawing by Rudolf Stumpf	51
5. EDMUND HUSSERL (1905). Photo Peter Matzen; Göttingen. Copy supplied by Dr. Theodor Conrad, Starnberg	69
6. Two consecutive pages from the Brentano-Husserl correspondence in the Brentano Archives. Photo supplied by Dr. John C. M. Brentano	between 81 and 82
7. Publisher's announcement of Husserl's yearbook. Original in the Brentano Archives. Photo supplied by Dr. John C. M. Brentano	110
8. Announcement of Husserl's Lectures at the University of London. Original in the Husserl Archives, Louvain	134
9. EDMUND HUSSERL (1931). Drawing by Rudolf Stumpf. Copyright Erna Stumpf, Göttingen	148
10. Philosophische Gesellschaft, Göttingen (1912). Photo supplied by Dr. Theodor Conrad	166
11. ALEXANDER PFÄNDER (1940). Photo by Gerhard Isselmann, Teisendorf	170

12. JOHANNES DAUBERT (about 1905). Photo supplied by Mrs. Daubert, Mainburg	170
13. ADOLF REINACH (about 1912). Photo supplied by Jean Hering	170
14. MORITZ GEIGER (about 1930). Photo supplied by Mrs. Elisabeth Geiger, Göttingen	170
15. MAX SCHELER. Photo supplied by Dr. Theodor Conrad	268
16. NICOLAI HARTMANN (about 1945). Photo from Heimsoeth, Heinz und Heiss, Robert, eds., Nicolai Hartmann, Der Denker und sein Werk	306
17. MARTIN HEIDEGGER (about 1930). Photo by Luise M. Engler	336
18. GABRIEL MARCEL. Universal Photo 3.308, supplied by the Ambassade de France à Bruxelles	448
19. JEAN-PAUL SARTRE (with Pouillon on the Pont Neuf). Photo by H. Cartier-Bresson	470
20. MAURICE MERLEAU-PONTY. Photo from Pages de France N° 10.393, supplied by the Ambassade de France à Bruxelles	537
21. PAUL RICOEUR. Photo supplied by Paul Ricoeur	585
22. EMMANUEL LEVINAS. Photograph copyright David Harali (from Stephan Strasser, Jenseits von Sein und Zeit)	612