

Contents

Preface	vii
1 Description and Interpretation: Possibilities for Phenomenology	1
1.1 The Idea of ‘Description’	1
1.2 Philosophical Description	7
1.3 Descriptive and Speculative Philosophy	14
1.4 Varieties of Description	19
1.5 Some Objections Considered	21
1.6 How to Describe ‘Essences’: The Method of Imaginative Variation	25
1.7 ‘Psychologism’ Revisited	39
1.8 Description and Interpretation as Possibilities for Phenomenology	51
2 The Intentional Content	67
2.1 Object and Content	67
2.2 Perceptual Meaning	73
2.3 Content and Context	83
2.4 Content and ‘Ideality’	93
2.5 Levels of Understanding Intentionality: A Path to Transcendental Philosophy	95

3	Phenomenology as Transcendental Philosophy	115
3.1	Foundationalist Projects and their Criticisms	115
3.2	History, Time and Anti-foundationalism	117
3.3	Beyond Kant	125
3.4	Interpretation Theory and Relativism	127
3.5	Phenomenology and Relativism	130
3.6	Notes	150
3.7	Some Criticisms Answered	154
3.8	Levels of Subjectivity: A Lesson from Hegel	158
3.9	A Summary and a Remark	159
	Notes	161
	Index	171