

Contents

---

Preface ix

Introduction 1

1. A map of this book 2

1.1. The concept of logic 3

1.2. Set theory and mathematics 5

1.3. Carnap and Quine 8

2. A refutation of analytic empiricism 10

3. Contractions of philosophy 26

3.1. Philosophy as worldview 27

3.2. From Russell to Quine: a case study of contraction 32

3.3. The idea of phenomenography 37

Chapter 1

Russell and philosophy in this century 45

4. Russell and a Baconian project 48

4.1. Santayana on Russell 48

4.2. The transition period (1910–1914) 51

4.3. Updating Bacon's unfinished instauratio magna 53

4.4. Human Knowledge and human knowledge 56

5. Russell's philosophical development 59

6. Russell's work in logic 64

6.1. The PM project and its influence on Carnap and Quine 65

6.2. The paradoxes (1901–1907) 66

6.3. Advances since 1910 69

Chapter 2

A digression on Wittgenstein's philosophy 75

7. Russell's concept of logic before 1911 75

7.1. The logical constants and their axioms 77

7.2. The ultimate universality of logic 79

8. Wittgenstein's attitude toward philosophy 81

9. The structure of the Tractatus 89

10. The postulates of the Tractatus 95

Chapter 3

From Vienna 1925 to America 1984 101

11. The Vienna Circle and its place in American philosophy 102

11.1. The Vienna Circle 102

11.2. Logical analysis and scientific philosophy 105

11.3. Reichenbach and philosophy as philosophy of physics 108

11.4. Philosophy in America today 111

11.5. Pragmatism and C. I. Lewis 113

12. Carnap's work in relation to Russell and Quine 118

12.1. Stages of and influences on Carnap's development 118

12.2. Rational reconstruction and epistemology 122

12.3. From syntax to semantics 124

13. Analyticity and logical truth 126

13.1. The role of analyticity in philosophy 127

13.2. Quine and the dogmas of empiricism 130

13.3. Logical truth and set theory 133

13.4. From Russell and Carnap to Quine 136

14. Ontology and theories 138

14.1. What is ontology? 138

14.2. Quine's views on ontology 141

14.3. My system  $\Sigma_{\omega}$ : a slight extension of the 1925 PM 147

Chapter 4

Quine's logical negativism 153

15. Quine's life and work 153

15.1. His life	153
15.2. His work	156
15.3. His philosophical beliefs	158
16. Quine's philosophical system	163
16.1. Empiricism	165
16.2. Behaviorism and the central place of language	165
16.3. Quine's physicalism	166
16.4. Quine's 'liberated epistemology'	169
16.5. Reference and elementary logic at the center	171
16.6. Quine's negativism	174
17. Quine's logical ideas in historical perspective	177
17.1. The historical perspective	179
17.2. From NF to ML to SL	181
17.3. The career of NF (and ML)	186
Chapter 5
Metaphilosophical observations	191
18. Philosophical presuppositions	191
18.1. Asking different questions	192
18.2. Philosophy and specialization	195
18.3. Philosophy and 'the scientific method'	198
19. From how I know to what we know	201
19.1. Philosophy and psychology: now and before 1800	202
19.2. Philosophy and organic chemistry	204
19.3. Intuition and new disciplines	206
19.4. Using what we know	208
References	215
Chronological table	231
Index	261