

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	vii
EDITORIAL PREFACE	ix
INTRODUCTORY INTERVIEW	xi
I. THE PROBLEMS OF TIME IN PSYCHOLOGY
1. Stream of Consciousness and durée réelle	3
2. The Elusive Nature of the Past	26
3. The Fiction of Instants	43
4. Two Types of Continuity	56
5. Process and Personality in Bergson's Thought	71
6. Russell's Hidden Bergsonism	89
II. MATTER, CAUSATION, AND TIME
7. The Development of Reichenbach's Epistemology	103
8. The Significance of Piaget's Researches on the Psychogenesis of Atomism	129
9. Toward a Widening of the Notion of Causality	139
10. Simple Location and Fragmentation of Reality	167
11. Particles or Events?	191
III. THE STATUS OF TIME IN THE RELATIVISTIC PHYSICS
12. The End of the Laplacian Illusion	221
13. Eternal Recurrence – Once More	265

14. Note About Whitehead's Definition of Co-Presence	278
15. Bergson and Louis De Broglie	286
16. What is Living and What is Dead in the Bergsonian Critique of Relativity	296
17. Time-Space Rather than Space-Time	324
IV. BIBLIOGRAPHY OF MILIČ ČAPEK	345