

CONTENTS

	page
About the Authors	vii
Introduction Mitchell G. Ash	1
1 Social Context and Investigative Practice in Early Twentieth-Century Psychology Kurt Danziger	13
2 Programmatic Research in Experimental Psychology: E. B. Titchener's Laboratory Investigations, 1891–1927 Ryan D. Tweney	35
3 Neo-Behaviorism and the Garcia Effect: A Social Psychology of Science Approach to the History of a Paradigm Clash Ian Lubek and Erika Apfelbaum	59
4 On the Margins: Women and the Professionalization of Psychology in the United States, 1890–1940 Laurel Furumoto	93
5 From Act Psychology to Probabilistic Functionalism: The Place of Egon Brunswik in the History of Psychology David E. Leary	115
6 Psychology and Politics in Interwar Vienna: The Vienna Psychological Institute, 1922–1942 Mitchell G. Ash	143

7 German Psychology During the Nazi Period Ulfried Geuter	165
8 L. S. Vygotskii: The Muffled Diety of Soviet Psychology David Joravsky	189
9 The Social History of Chinese Psychology Matthias Petzold	213
10 British Psychoanalysts in Colonial India Christiane Hartnack	233
11 The Ideological Significance of Freud's Social Thought Louise E. Hoffman	253
12 Jean Piaget and the Liberal Protestant Tradition Fernando Vidal	271
Conclusion: Professionalization, Rationality, and Political Linkages in Twentieth-Century Psychology William R. Woodward	295
Name Index	311
Subject Index	316