

Contents

Note to the Reader xv

- 1 The Problem of Thinking without Words 3
 - 1.1 Morgan's canon and psychological explanations of behavior 6
 - 1.2 The parameters of the problem 10
- 2 Two Approaches to the Nature of Thought 13
 - 2.1 The Fregean approach: Thoughts as the senses of sentences 14
 - 2.2 The language of thought hypothesis 22
 - 2.3 The language of thought and the epistemology of thought without language 27
 - 2.4 The road ahead 31
- 3 Minimalist Approaches to Nonlinguistic Thought 34
 - 3.1 Thinking-how and thinking-that: An intuitive contrast 36
 - 3.2 Minimalist approaches to nonlinguistic thought 38
 - 3.3 The minimalist construal of intentional action and explanation 46
 - 3.4 The argument from planning 51

- 3.5 The argument from intelligent action 56
- 3.6 The argument from psychological explanation 60
- 3.7 Taking stock 62
- 4 Ascribing Thoughts to Nonlinguistic Creatures:
Toward an Ontology 64
 - 4.1 Success semantics: Problems and prospects 65
 - 4.2 Success semantics and radical interpretation 69
 - 4.3 Two types of reification 72
 - 4.4 Dishabituation and higher-order principles 78
 - 4.5 From object-properties to ontology 82
- 5 Ascribing Thoughts to Nonlinguistic Creatures:
Modes of Presentation 88
 - 5.1 Individuals, modes of presentation and the sortal problem 89
 - 5.2 Structured thoughts and psychological explanation 95
 - 5.3 Success semantics and nonlinguistic thought:
An overview 104
- 6 Rationality without Language 109
 - 6.1 Theoretical and practical rationality 109
 - 6.2 Level 0 rationality 116
 - 6.3 Level 1 rationality 120
 - 6.4 Level 2 rationality 123
 - 6.5 Nonlinguistic rationality and psychological explanation 128

7	Practical Reasoning and Protologic	133
	7.1 The decision-theoretic model of practical reasoning	133
	7.2 Inference and proto-logic	140
8	Language and Thinking about Thoughts	150
	8.1 Language as a cognitive tool	151
	8.2 Intentional ascent and semantic ascent	158
9	The Limits of Thinking without Words	165
	9.1 Belief revision and second-order cognitive dynamics	166
	9.2 Higher-order desires	170
	9.3 Intentional ascent and understanding other minds	171
	9.4 Embedding and intentional ascent	178
	9.5 Two types of general thought	183
	9.6 From domain-specificity to domain-generality	185
	Afterword	189
	Notes	195
	References	205
	Index	219