

Contents

Preface

vii

1 Theory of Science for Psychology

1.1	Introduction	1
1.2	Knowledge, everyday knowledge and science	3
1.3	Arguments, laws, theories, models and facts	8
1.4	Explanation and understanding	19
1.5	Functional and teleological explanations	25
1.6	Reduction, supervenience and strata	31
1.7	Reasons and causes	37
	Suggested reading	39

2 Philosophy of Science for Psychology

2.1	Introduction: scientific methods and rationality	41
2.2	Logical positivism and demarcation	42
2.3	Problems with the standard view of science	45
2.4	Demarcation – Popper	51
2.5	Demarcation abandoned – Kuhn, Lakatos, Feyerabend	55
2.6	Alternatives to positivism 1 – hermeneutics, constructionism, rhetoric	62
2.7	Problems of realism and relativism	69
2.8	Alternatives to positivism 2 – scientific realism and pragmatism	73
	Suggested reading	80

3 Sociology and Psychology of Science

3.1	Introduction	81
3.2	Ideology and the sociology of knowledge	82
3.3	Critical Theory and the sociology of science	84
3.4	The Strong Programme in the sociology of knowledge	87
3.5	The sociology of scientific practice	91
3.6	And what about a psychology of science?	95
	Suggested reading	98

4 Philosophy of Mind
4.1 Introduction: the nature of mind	100
4.2 The explananda: consciousness, intentionality, representation	104
4.3 The orthodoxy: the computational theory of mind	107
4.4 The competition: eliminativism and connectionism	114
4.5 Other views, same issues	122
4.6 Against mechanistic theories of mind: some alternatives Suggested reading	140 148
Epilogue	151
Glossary	155
Bibliography	170
Name Index	187
Subject Index	189