

Contents

Preface	ix
How to use this guide	x
Acknowledgements	x
Part 1 Introduction	1
1 Applied versus Pure Psychology	3
1.1 Audiences	5
1.2 General versus specific	5
1.3 Snobbery	6
1.4 Long-term versus short-term research	6
1.5 What makes an applied experimental psychologist?	8
2 Laboratory versus the 'Real World'	10
2.1 Laboratory experiments and field experiments	10
2.2 Field experiments and field studies	16
2.3 Impact significance – or the significance of significance	19
Part 2 Preparation and Planning	23
3 Prior Preparation	25
4 Getting Started	26
4.1 Getting the idea	26
4.2 The aim	29
4.3 The plan	32
4.4 Choosing a sample	33
4.5 Project failure	38
4.6 Plan failure	39
5 Specifications	44
6 Pilot Studies	48
6.1 Walkthrough	49
6.2 Mock analysis	50
7 Obtaining Permission	51
8 Site Reconnaissance	55
9 Matériel	57
10 Logistics	61

Contents

11	Contingency Planning	61
12	Psychological 'Tools'	63

Part 3 In the Field 65

13	Administration	67
13.1	A psychological 'ops room'	67
13.2	The importance and problems of breaks	69
14	Administration versus Experimentation	70
15	Primed Experiments	72
16	Record-keeping and Documentation	75
16.1	Experimental diary	76
16.2	Site diary	77
16.3	Memorandum	78
16.4	Progress reports	79
16.5	Miscellaneous	79
17	Subjects	81
17.1	Informing your subjects	81
17.2	Subject resistance	84
17.3	Real subjects	87
17.4	Experimenters and what to watch out for	90
18	Subject Acquisition	91
19	Health and Safety	93
	In the Field: Dos and Don'ts	94

Part 4 Back at Base 97

20	Data Logging and Processing	99
20.1	Office organization	99
20.2	Data processing	100
21	The Write Up	103
22	Decommissioning the Experiment	107
22.1	Data security	107
22.2	Acknowledgements	107
22.3	Matériel	108

Part 5 Lessons from Field Research 111

	Introduction	113
--	--------------	-----

23	The Hawthorne Effect	113
24	Ethical Factors in Behavioural Research	115
24.1	Deception	116
24.2	Fear	117
24.3	Informed consent	117
24.4	Trust	118
24.5	Corruption	118
24.6	Confidentiality	120
24.7	Risk	120
25	Politics	122
26	A Subject's Eye View of the Psychologist	124
Part 6 Project Management Techniques for Field Research		127
27	Managing the Experiment	129
28	The Gantt Chart	132
28.1	Critical path	132
28.2	Milestones	136
29	Hints for Project Planning	140
Appendix 1: Ethical Principles for Conducting Research with Human Participants		143
Answers to SAQs		149
Bibliography		152
Index		154