Contents

Foreword by John J. Gumperz ix
Preface xi

1 Gatekeeping in Counseling: Processes of Social Selection in Face-to-Face Interaction 1
An Interview 1
The Interview as a Social Occasion 3
A Social and Cultural Ecology of Communication, Empathy, and Rapport 10
Conclusion 11

2 Social Identity and the Organization of Discourse in the Interviews 13
Basic Concepts 13
Discourse Organization as Definition of Situation 20
Through the Looking Glass: The Selective Revelation of Social Identity within the Encounter 27
The Encounter in Relation to the World Outside It 37
3
Research Methods and Procedures: An Overview

Some Principles for the Procedures 49
Converting Information from the Audiovisual Record into Data 63

4
Aspects of Social Organization in Communicative Performance

The Social Organization of Communicative Action 70
Social Steering at the Level of the Discourse Topic 77
Social Steering within and across Utterances—The Role of Rhythm 85
in Conversational Cooperation
Discussion 96

5
Cultural Organization and Its Effects on the Social Organization of Performance

Cultural Organization in Communication 99
Cultural Difference and Interactional Rhythm 103
Cultural Difference and Conversational Cooperation during Explanations 117
Conclusion 143

6
Contrasts in Ways of Asking Questions and Telling Advice

Turning Point I—Discussion of Grades and Courses 147
Turning Point II—Discussion of the Student's Future Goals 155
Turning Point III—Advice about the Student's Future Goal 159
Conclusion 164

7
Overall Patterns and Summary Evidence

Overview of the Variables 167
Results 169
8
Some Implications for Practice and for Research

Review of Findings and Interpretations 179
The Interview as a Partially Bounded Encounter 181
Social Ecology and the Politics of Communicative Knowledge 183
Implications for Counseling Practice 190
Some Options for Institutional Change 192
Options for Counselor Education 197
Implications for Research in Interactional Sociolinguistics 212

Appendix A
Scoring Comembership Levels for the Interviews 219
Step I. Determining the Comembership Salience Profile for Each Counselor 219
Step II. Determining the Comembership Score for Each Interview 220

Appendix B
Equipment and Its Use in Filming and Recording 225

Appendix C
Examples of Summary Tables and Corresponding Examples of Transcripts 227

Appendix D
Descriptions of “Uncomfortable Moments” and “Asymmetry Segments” Coding and Procedures 245

References 249

Subject Index 257