

Table of contents

Acknowledgements	XI
CHAPTER 1
Preliminaries	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Sequence organization and the study of compliments	2
1.3 Interaction and grammar	4
1.4 Methodology	6
1.5 Outline of the individual chapters	6
CHAPTER 2
Methodology	11
2.1 Introduction	11
2.2 Instruments of data collection	12
2.2.1 Discourse completion tasks (DCTs) and questionnaires	12
2.2.2 Role-plays	15
2.2.3 Field observation	17
2.2.4 Recall protocols	19
2.2.5 Recordings of naturally occurring talk-in-interaction	20
2.2.6 Summary on data collection procedures	21
2.3 Generalizability	22
2.4 The data for the present corpus	24
CHAPTER 3
Giving compliments: The design of first compliment turns	27
3.1 Introduction	27
3.2 Reference to the assessable	29
3.2.1 Locally initial reference forms in locally initial positions (NPs and 2PS Pronoun), and locally subsequent reference forms in locally subsequent positions	36
3.2.2 Locally subsequent forms in locally subsequent positions	44

- 3.2.3 Locally initial forms in locally subsequent positions 50
- 3.2.4 Locally subsequent reference forms in locally initial position 54
  - 3.2.4.1 Demonstrative pronouns used as reference to the assessable 54
  - 3.2.4.2 No overt reference to the assessable when reference is in locally initial position 62
- 3.2.5 Locally subsequent forms and locally initial forms in locally initial positions 67
- 3.2.6 Summary of reference to assessable 72
- 3.3 Syntactic features of compliment turns 73
  - 3.3.1 Verb-first constructions 73
  - 3.3.2 Right dislocation (endpositioning) 75
- 3.4 Semantic features of compliment turns 77
  - 3.4.1 Verbs used in compliment turns 77
  - 3.4.2 Appreciatory sounds 78
  - 3.4.3 Adjectives 82
- 3.5 Topics of compliments 83
- 3.6 Gender 83

CHAPTER 4

Giving compliments: Sequential embedding and function of first compliment turns

- 4.1 Introduction 85
- 4.2 The form of an utterance (alone) does not determine its function 86
- 4.3 Compliments in dispreferred environments 95
  - 4.3.1 Compliments as components of dispreferred second pair parts 95
  - 4.3.2 Compliments as components of dispreferred first pair parts 100
- 4.4 Compliments in preferred environments 106
  - 4.4.1 Compliments as parts of preferred second pair parts 106
  - 4.4.2 Compliments as first pair parts 116
- 4.5 Discussion 126

CHAPTER 5

Compliments in multi-party interactions: Third parties providing second compliments

133

- 5.1 Introduction 133
- 5.2 Shape of a second compliment – Why this shape now? 134
  - 5.2.1 Gustatory mmmh 135
  - 5.2.2 Agreement 137
  - 5.2.3 Response pursuit marker 141
  - 5.2.4 Brief assessment 147
  - 5.2.5 Discussion: What do these forms accomplish? What are some of the differences between them? 150
- 5.3 Placement of the turn in relation to the compliment response 152
- 5.4 Compliments and multi-party talk 155
- 5.5 Discussion 165

CHAPTER 6

Compliment responses

167

- 6.1 Introduction 167
- 6.2 Compliment responses in American English 169
- 6.3 Compliment responses in German 174
- 6.4 Systematic features of German compliment responses 185
  - 6.4.1 Compliments in dispreferred first pair parts 185
  - 6.4.2 Responses to compliments given as part of dispreferred second pair parts 186
  - 6.4.3 Responses to compliments in preferred first pair parts 189
  - 6.4.4 Responses to compliments given in preferred second pair parts 190
  - 6.4.5 Summary of response type in relationship to function of the compliment 191
- 6.5 Topic and gender 191
- 6.6 Comparison of American and German compliment responses 193
  - 6.6.1 American English compliment responses in contrast to German compliment responses 193
  - 6.6.2 A cross-cultural encounter 197
  - 6.6.3 Implications for second language acquisition and teaching 199

CHAPTER 7

Concluding discussion 201

7.1 Summary of the findings 201

7.2 Broader implications 207

7.2.1 Sequence organization and methodology 207

7.2.2 Interaction and grammar 209

7.3 Directions of future research 210

Notes 213

References 227

Name index 241

Subject index 245