PART I. HISTORY OF RESEARCH ON FEELING

Chapter 1. History of Research on Feeling

Joseph C. Stevens and Barry G. Green

I. Introduction	3
II. E. H. Weber (1795–1878)	4
III. M. von Frey (1852–1932)	6
IV. Research on Warmth and Cold	7
V. Three Theories of Somesthesis	12
VI. Research on Touch	15
VII. Recent Directions in Research on Feeling	20
References	22

PART II. BIOPHYSICS, NEUROPHYSIOLOGY, AND PSYCHOLOGY OF FEELING

Chapter 2. Biophysics and Psychophysics of Feeling

Dan R. Kenshalo, Sr.

I. Tactile Sensitivity	30
II. Thermal Sensations	49
III. Proprioception	60
References	63

Chapter 3. Phylogenetic Development of Feeling

Dan R. Kenshalo, Sr.

I. Evolutionary Development of Feeling	75
II. Conclusions and Comments	94
References	96

Chapter 4. The Role of Different Cerebral Structures in Somesthetic Perception

Suzanne Corkin

I. Physiological Considerations Based on Studies in Patients	106
II. Anatomical Considerations Based on Studies in the Monkey	110
III. Hemispheric Specialization in Normal Man	113
IV. Somesthetic Processing after Brain Bisection in Man	119
V. Somesthetic Processing after Cerebral Lesion in Man	125
VI. A Final Comment	145
References	147

PART III. HISTORY OF CONCEPTS IN RESEARCH ON PAIN

Chapter 5. A Brief Historical Survey of Concepts in Pain Research

Lawrence Kruger and Sandra A. Kroin

I. Introduction	159
II. Pain as Dysfunction	160
III. The Doctrine of Specific Nerve Energies	161
IV. Morphology of Pain Endings	163
V. Surgical Interruption	164
VI. Axon Size and the Concept of Specific Segregated Channels for Pain	166
VII. Protopathic–Nonspecific Concepts	168
VIII. Central Nociceptive Action	171
IX. Pain Control	171
X. Summary	175
References	175

PART IV. NEUROPHYSIOLOGY, PSYCHOLOGY, AND PATHOLOGY OF PAIN

Chapter 6. Neural Mechanisms of Pain

Kenneth L. Casey

I. Introduction	183
II. Peripheral Mechanisms	184
III. First Central Synapses	189
IV. The Ventrolateral (Spinothalamic) Pathway	196
V. Supraspinal Mechanisms	201
VI. Descending Influences	214
VII. Summary	217
References	219

Chapter 7. Psychological Dimensions and Perceptual Analyses, Including Pathologies of Pain

Richard A. Sternbach

I. Introduction	231
II. Perceptual Parameters	233
III. Personality Parameters	244
IV. Pathologies of Pain	253
V. Conclusions	257
References	258

Chapter 8. The Hurtful World: Pathological Pain and Its Control

C. Richard Chapman

I. Introduction	264
II. Basic Considerations in the Study of Pathological Pain	265
III. Causes of Pain	270
IV. Some Chronic Pain Syndromes	275
V. Therapeutic Interruption of Pain Pathways	281
VI. Conservative Therapies for Pain	284
VII. Behavioral Therapies for Pain	292
VIII. Conclusions	295
References	296
