

Contents

Editor's Note	vii
Introduction	1
Harold Bloom
Theatres and Companies: The Context of the Professional Stage—James Burbage and John Lyly	27
Peter Happé
New Tragedies for Old	47
Martin Wiggins
Marlowe and the Jades of Asia	65
Eugene M. Waith
Doctor Faustus	81
Martha Tuck Rozett
'Italian masques by night': Machiavellian Policy and Ovidian Play in Edward II	111
Patrick Cheney
Artificial Comedy and Popular Comedy: Shakespeare's Inheritance	135
M.C. Bradbrook
Marlowe, Shakespeare, Spenser, and the Fictive Navarre	151
Paul J. Voss
Shakespeare's and Jonson's View of Public Theatre Audiences	191
Alvin B. Kernan
Licensed Fools: the 1598 Watershed	205
Richard Dutton

The Elizabethan Dramatists as Literary Critics James P. Bednarz	229
Jonson on Shakespeare: Criticism as Self-Creation James P. Bednarz	247
The Other Side of the War: Marston and Dekker Matthew Steggle	261
The Revenger's Tragedy (c. 1606): Providence, Parody and Black Camp Jonathan Dollimore	285
Bussy D'Ambois (c. 1604): A Hero at Court Jonathan Dollimore	297
Parasites and Sub-Parasites: The City as Predator in Jonson and Middleton Gail Kern Paster	303
Pastimes and the Purging of Theater: Bartholomew Fair (1614) Leab S. Marcus	327
The Royal Spectacle Stephen Orgel	341
Tragicomedy G.K. Hunter	355
Giving the Finger: Puns and Transgression in The Changeling Anthony B. Dawson	381
Chronology	399
Contributors	407
Bibliography	411
Acknowledgments	417
Index	419