

Contents

Acknowledgements	9
General Introduction: Towards a History of Representation at the Early Modern University	11
1. University Inauguration and Representation	31
1.1 Introduction	31
1.2 The festival of inauguration at Helmstedt	35
1.2.1 Analysis of ceremony: introduction	40
1.2.1.1 The festive entry (14th of October)	41
1.2.1.2 The Act of Institution and the installation of the Rector (15th of October)	45
1.2.1.3 The inaugural Promotionen (16th of October)	49
1.2.1.4 Oratorical representations	51
1.2.1.5 Audiences	60
1.2.1.6 Conclusion	61
1.3 The festival of inauguration at Würzburg	62
1.3.1 Analysis	64
1.4 The “festival book” and representation: the Historica nar- ratio de introductione Universitatis Juliae	68
1.5 Conclusion	82
2. Reputations, Representation, and the Public Life of the Scholar ...	85
2.1 Introduction	85
2.2 Academic rites of passage	87
2.2.1 Prescribed ceremony of Promotion at Helmstedt	88
2.2.2 Prescribed ceremony of Promotion at Würzburg	89
2.2.3 Promotion ceremonies and academic identity	91
2.3 The celebration of Promotion in print	97

2.4	Professorial portraits	108
2.5	Celebrations of prominence: the special case of Heinrich Meibom	113
2.6	Representation through commemoration	117
2.6.1	The commemoration of Owen Günther	120
2.6.2	The commemoration of Rudolph Diephold	123
2.6.3	The commemoration of Johannes Caselius	126
2.6.4	The commemoration of Cornelis Martini: a challenge to convention?	130
2.6.5	Commemoration and reputation: conclusion	134
2.7	The Monumenta Julia and the functions of commemoration	135
2.8	Conclusion	140
3.	Marriage and the Fashioning of Professorial Society	143
3.1	Introduction	143
3.2	Marriage strategies, professorial "community", and the Familienuniversität	146
3.3	Marriage pamphlets and the representation of professorial community	148
3.3.1	Format, design, and the fashioning of professorial community	152
3.3.2	Representational patterns in the content of epithalamia	160
3.4	Conclusion	171
4.	Representation through Architecture and its Celebration	173
4.1	Introduction	173
4.2	Construction, design, and, representational significance of university buildings	176
4.2.1	Helmstedt	176
4.2.2	Würzburg	182
4.3	Unveiling festivals and representation	185
4.3.1	Unveiling ceremonies at Helmstedt	185

4.3.1.1	Procession, the use of space, and the codification of social order	187
4.3.1.2	Sound, spectacle, and the crowd	190
4.3.1.3	Performative functions of ceremony	193
4.3.2	The unveiling festival at Würzburg	196
4.3.2.1	Festival and representation	198
4.3.2.2	Spectacle and spectator	200
4.3.2.3	Functions of the festival	201
4.4	Occasional publications	202
4.4.1	Pamphlets occasioned by the inauguration of the Juleum Novum at Helmstedt	203
4.4.1.1	Formats	203
4.4.1.2	Functions of publication; self-acknowledged and other ...	204
4.4.1.3	Description and interpretation of architecture	205
4.4.1.4	Schools, princes, and patronage	212
4.4.2	Pamphlets occasioned by the festival of dedication at Würzburg	215
4.4.2.1	Format	215
4.4.2.2	Self-acknowledged functions	216
4.4.2.3	Description of architecture	217
4.4.2.4	Core representations	217
4.5	Non-inaugural celebrations of university architecture in printed text and image	220
4.6	Conclusion	229
5.	Representation, Negotiation, and the Patronage Contract	231
5.1	Introduction	231
5.2	Professorial commemoration of princely patrons	232
5.2.1	Commemoration as negotiation at Helmstedt	232
5.2.1.1	Ducal funerals and the participation of professors	235
5.2.1.2	Opportunities for commemoration and pastoral responses	238
5.2.1.3	Professorial commemoration of Duke Julius	240
5.2.1.4	The commemoration of Heinrich Julius	248

5.2.1.5	The commemoration of Friedrich Ulrich	255
5.2.1.6	Ducal commemoration at Helmstedt: conclusions	259
5.2.2	Academic commemoration of Julius Echter at Würzburg	260
5.3	Other occasional forms and the pursuit of patronage.....	263
5.4	Fulfilling the patronage contract: Friedrich Ulrich and the Bibliotheca Julia	265
5.5	Conclusion	272
	Conclusion	275
	Abbreviations, Conventions, and Glossary	281
	Bibliography	283
	Appendices	323
	Index	359