

Contents

Preface	v
Contributors	ix

Part I: Basic Research

1	Why Be Optimistic About Cognitive Strategy Instruction? SONYA SYMONS, BARBARA L. SNYDER, TERESA CARIGLIA-BULL, and MICHAEL PRESSLEY	1
2	The Triple Alliance for Learning: Cognition, Metacognition, and Motivation ELIZABETH J. SHORT and JILL A. WEISSBERG-BENCHELL	33
3	Children's Utilization of Study Time: Differential and Sufficient Aspects ANNETTE DUFRESNE and AKIRA KOBASIGAWA	64
4	Informal Instruction and Development of Cognitive Skills: A Review and Critique of Research JEANNE D. DAY, LUIS A. CORDON, and MARY LOUISE KERWIN	83
5	Domain-Specific Knowledge, Metacognition, and the Promise of Instructional Reform WILLIAM D. ROHWER, JR. and JOHN W. THOMAS	104
6	Why Strategy Instruction Is So Difficult and What We Need to Do About It GERALD G. DUFFY and LAURA R. ROEHLER	133

Part II: Educational Applications

7	The Selective Attention Strategy and Prose Learning RALPH E. REYNOLDS, SUZANNE E. WADE, WOODROW TRATHEN, and RICHARD LAPAN	157
8	Children's Communication Skills: Implications for the Development of Writing Strategies CAROLE R. BEAL	191
9	Cognitive Monitoring in Mathematics JAMES P. VAN HANEGHAN and LINDA BAKER	215
10	Schema-Based Strategies and Implications for Instructional Design in Strategy Training JOAN K. GALLINI	239
11	Strategy and Expertise in Solving Word Problems SHARON J. DERRY	269
12	Computer-Assisted Strategic Instruction RICHARD LEHRER	303
	Author Index	321
	Subject Index	335