Preface	IX
Acknowledgments	XI
Chapter I: The transformationalist treatment of word formation	1
1. The lexicon: from marginal to central.....	1
1.1. Syntactic Structures	1
1.2. The Standard Theory	3
1.2.1. Lexical Insertion.....	6
2. Word formation as transformations.....	8
2.1. The sentence as the source of compounds.....	9
2.2. Deletion of lexical material	11
2.3. Variability in the meaning of compounds.....	12
2.4. Absolute exceptions.....	13
3. Summary.....	14
Chapter II: Lexicalist morphology	17
1. The Lexicalist Hypothesis (Chomsky 1970)	17
1.1. Consequences for derivation	20
1.2. Word stress rules	22
2. Prolegomena to a theory of word formation (Halle 1973).....	23
2.1. The model	24
2.1.1. Word Formation Rules.....	27
2.1.2. The Dictionary and Lexical Insertion.....	30
2.1.3. Summary	30
2.2. Relevance of Halle's theory	31
2.3. Some criticisms of Halle's model.....	32
3. Summary.....	34
Chapter III: Word formation in generative morphology	37
1. Morphemes and words.....	37
1.1. The Word Based Hypothesis.....	40
1.2. Goals of a morphological theory.....	40
2. Word Formation Rules	42
3. Restrictions on Word Formation Rules.....	44
3.1. The base	44
3.1.1. Syntax and semantics.....	45
3.1.2. Phonology.....	46
3.1.3. Morphology	48

VI Generative Morphology

3.2. The output.....	51
4. Summary.....	54
Chapter IV: Readjustment rules	57
1. Readjustment Rules	57
1.1. Truncation Rules.....	58
1.2. Allomorphy Rules	60
2. Justification of Readjustment Rules	61
2.1. Readjustment Rules and Word Formation Rules	63
2.2. Readjustment Rules and Phonological Rules.....	66
3. Summary.....	67
Chapter V: Lexical formatives and word formation rules	71
1. Words and stems	71
1.1. Learned stems	75
2. Representation	76
2.1. External Boundaries	76
2.2. Formatives of the lexical component.....	78
2.2.1. Simple words	78
2.2.2. Stems.....	79
2.2.3. Affixes	79
2.2.4. Inflectional morphemes	81
2.3. Class I and Class II Affixes	81
2.3.1. Level Ordered Morphology.....	85
2.3.2. Level Ordered Morphology in Italian and Dutch.....	87
3. Compounding.....	90
3.1. The Variable R Condition	90
3.2. The "IS A" Condition.....	92
3.3. Boundaries in compounds and the Extended Level Ordering Hypothesis.....	93
4. Well formedness conditions	95
5. Summary	97
Chapter VI: Interplay between morphological rules	101
1. Strong Lexicalist Hypothesis.....	101
2. Derivation and Inflection	102
3. Compounding and Derivation	115
3.1. The Extended Ordering Hypothesis in English.....	116
3.2. The Extended Ordering Hypothesis in Italian.....	119
4. Compounding and Inflection.....	122
5. Some borderline cases	127
5.1. The Past Participle	127
5.2. Evaluative Suffixes	131
6. Summary.....	133
Chapter VII: Constraining word formation rules	137
1. The Unitary Base Hypothesis.....	137

1.1. The Modified Unitary Base Hypothesis.....	138
1.2. N, V, A +suffix.....	140
1.3. N, V +ata.....	141
1.4. N, V +ino.....	143
1.5. One suffix or two?.....	144
2. The Binary Branching Hypothesis.....	146
2.1. Parasynthetics.....	147
2.2. The suffix -istico	150
3. The Ordering Hypothesis.....	151
4. The No Phrase Constraint.....	154
5. Blocking.....	156
5.1. Productivity.....	157
5.2. Blocking and the Blocking Rule.....	158
5.2.1. Blocking and the Blocking Rule in French.....	160
6. Summary.....	163
Chapter VIII: Morphology and syntax.....	167
1. Word Formation Rules and Transformations.....	167
1.1. Locality.....	169
1.1.1. The Adjacency Condition.....	169
1.1.2. The Atom Condition.....	171
1.1.3. A comparison between the Adjacency Condition and the Atom Condition.....	173
1.2. Subcategorization Frames.....	178
1.2.1. Subcategorization Frame and Syntactic Category.....	178
1.2.2. Morphology and Argument Structure.....	181
2. Clitics.....	183
3. Interaction between Morphology and Syntax.....	185
3.1. Word Bar Theory.....	186
3.2. Inflection.....	191
4. Summary and conclusions.....	197
Symbols and Abbreviations.....	201
Subject Index.....	205
Affix Index.....	211
Word Index.....	215
Index of Names.....	231
Bibliography.....	233
