

Contents

Foreword	vii
Lewis R. Gordon
Acknowledgments	xiii
Introduction	xvii
Carolyn M. Cusick and Michael R. Paradiso-Michau
1 What Is a Victim?	1
2 Freud, Gender, and the Epigenesis of Morality: A Critique	21
3 The Crisis in Psychoanalysis: Resolution through Husserlian Phenomenology and Feminism	43
4 Addictions, Akrasia , and Self Psychology: A Socratic and Psychoanalytic View of Akrasia as Victim Blaming	81
5 Fanon, Phenomenology, and the Decentering of Philosophy: Lewis Gordon's Her Majesty's Other Children: Sketches of Racism from a Neocolonial Age	97
6 Race and Culture: Victim Blaming in Psychology, Psychiatry, and Psychoanalysis	111
7 Autonomy, Empathy, and Transcendence in Sophocles' Antigone: A Phenomenological Perspective , with an Epilogue: On Lacan's Antigone	129
8 Neither Victim nor Survivor Be: Who Is Beloved's Baby?	163
Bibliography	195
Index	203