

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword: Theoretical position and methodological situation	9
Part One: Atomism and the Immanent Approach
Introduction: A radical immanence beyond the "New Criticism"	15
Chapter I: Structured narrator and structured myth	23
Je and the diversification of discourse, 23 – Structured fable: the pattern of incident, 31 – Structured conscience: the choice of themes, 35 – Structured allegory: the orchestration of symbols, 39 – Structured dream: the significant obsessions, 45 – Conclusion, 48
Chapter II: Structured vision: the tinted veil	49
The contingent narrator and the parameters of pretence, 53
(a) Modes of deceit and self-deceit, 55 – Deliberate deceit, 57 – Unconscious deceit, 59 – The problem of memory, 60 – Conclusion, 61
(b) Other-portrayal and self-betrayal, 62 – Self-portrayal, 63 – Other-portrayal, 65 – Self as Other, 67 – Self-betrayal, 69 – The gaze of the Self and the gaze of the Other: voyeurism, narcissism, exhibitionism, 72 – Conclusion, 74
Part Two: Holism and the Period Style Approach
Introduction: Culture periods and the Foucault controversy	77
Chapter III: The concept of rococo style in literature	85
From plastic arts to literature: "family resemblances", 85 – Coming of age in Rome (1960), 87 – The Anger contribution of 1962, 88 – The Laufer thesis of 1963, 89 – "... et puis on consulta l'orfèvre" (1964), 91 – Saisselin versus Minguet in 1966, 93 – Finch and individualism (1966), 94 – The Hatzfeld recapitulation of 1972, 96 – The recourse to structuralism: rococo as metonymy, 97 – The contribution of psychoanalysis: from metonymy and immanence to euphemization, 105 – Conclusion, 113
Chapter IV: Two French novels of 1731	115
Previous assessments, 115 – External indications, 118 – Style, 120 – Structure, 122 – Point of view, 124 – Characterization, 125 – Themes and symbols, 127 – Conclusion, 129
Epilogue: Intertextuality; entropy, transcoding, and secondary modelling systems	133

Part Three: Relationism and the Structuralist Approach

Introduction: Descriptive analysis and ideological interpretation	141
Chapter V: Linguistic and anthropological structuralisms	151
Elaboration and transformation, 152 – Functions, 157 – Actions, 170 – Narration, 174 – Tagmemes, 174 – Micro-narratives and packets of relation- ships, 177 – Nature versus Culture, 183 – The rites of exchange, 185 – Conclusion, 187
Chapter VI: Psychoanalytical, sociological, and archetypal structuralisms	189
(a) Proto-structuralist ideologies: Marx and Freud, 189 – Freudian structures and the weight of biography: Maury, 191 – Marxist structures and the weight of history: Wurmser, 194 – The structuralist radicalization: Lacan, Goldmann, Althusser, 198 – Conclusion, 209
(b) Modes of myth criticism: Graves and Jung, 209 – Myths and structures: Durand and Frye, 210 – Archetypes of Quest, Initiation, and Sacrifice of Scapegoat, 211 – Greek myth patterns, 213 – Orphic descent and Narcissus myth, 214 – From patterns to symbols, 218 – Conclusion, 219
General Conclusion	221
Selected Bibliography	225
Index	231