

Contents

	Page
Stanley Aston, Cambridge Memorial Address	1-6
Peter Ricketts, London Lo vers comensa de Marcabru (P.C. 293,32): édition critique, traduction et commentaire	7-26
John Marshall, London The doas cuidas of Marcabru	27-33
Jean-Charles Payen, Caen Bernard Marti et la légende de Tristan	34-43
Herman Braet, Leuven Non es meravelha s'eu chan: le même et l'autre	44-51
Gérard Gouiran, Aix-en-Provence Bertran de Born, poète de l'amour	52-61
Charles Rostaing, Paris Les troubadours comtadins	62-73
Aimo Sakari, Helsinki Pour lire la lyrique occitane médiévale	74-77
Don Monson, William and Mary College L'amour pur d'André le Chapelain et la poésie des troubadours	78-89
William Paden Jnr., Northwestern University The Role of the Joglar in Troubadour Lyric Poetry	90-111
Linda Paterson, Warwick The Concept of Knighthood in the Twelfth-Century Occitan Lyric	112-132
Peter Davies, Glasgow Paradise glimpsed: a newly-exposed fifteenth century fragment of Occitan doggerel	133-158
Dafydd Evans, London Marie de France, Chrétien de Troyes, and the malmariée	159-171
Douglas Kelly, Wisconsin The Rhetoric of Adventure in Medieval Romance	172-185

	Page
Roy Owen, St Andrews Chrétien, Fergus, Aucassin et Nicolette and the comedy of Reversal	186-194
James Laidlaw, Aberdeen Shame Appeased: on the structure and the sen of the Chevalier au Lion	195-219
Peter Noble, Reading Chrétien's Arthur	220-237
Madeleine Blaess, Sheffield The public and private face of King Arthur's court in the works of Chrétien de Troyes	238-248
Fanni Bogdanow, Manchester The mystical theology of Bernard de Clairvaux and the meaning of Chrétien de Troyes' Conte du Graal	249-282