

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
1 'Médallions et Portraits': the language of admiration and tribute	10
Early literary criticism	12
Verlaine	13
Gautier and Banville	15
Rimbaud	17
Younger contemporaries	21
Tennyson and Swinburne	28
Edgar Allan Poe	31
Wagner	34
Villiers de l'Isle-Adam and William Beckford	38
Maupassant and Zola	45
The Impressionist painters	48
2 The prose poems and the translations	54
The prose poems	55
The translation of Poe's poetry	60
The 'Contes Indiens'	64
3 'Les Mots Anglais'	71
4 'La Dernière Mode'	84
The objects of fashion	90
The image of fashion	95
'La Femme': the subject of fashion	105
The spectacle of language and fashion	111
5 The language of theatre	119
Mallarmé and contemporary theatre	122
The presence of theatre	129
Elements of the theatre: myth, suspense and hero	135
The space of dance	154
The book and the spoken word	162

CONTENTS

6	The language of literature	168
	Reality and the map of words	174
	In black and white	182
	'L'œuvre pure': expectation and experience	188
	'La Musique et Les Lettres'	200
	Reading: a paradox of movement	214
	Conclusion	223
	Bibliography	233
	Index	237