

Contents

Part I		1
1	Introduction	3
1.1	Alternative approaches to the study of language	3
1.2	Some important properties of language	5
1.3	Writing systems	9
1.4	Overview	24
Part II	Language processing in children	27
2	Learning to talk: the earliest stages	29
2.1	Introduction	29
2.2	Theoretical perspectives	29
2.3	The social context of early linguistic development	36
2.4	Adult speech to children	40
2.5	Overview	52
3	Learning to talk: later developments	53
3.1	Introduction	53
3.2	Rules in early child language	54
3.3	Strategies in sentence comprehension	62
3.4	Developing linguistic hypotheses about language	70
3.5	Acquiring communicative competence	72
3.6	Overview	79
4	Learning to read	82
4.1	Introduction	82
4.2	Alternative procedures for reading	83

4.3	Four phases in learning to read English	87
4.4	Learning to read in other languages	100
4.5	Overview	106
5	Developmental disorders of language	107
5.1	Introduction	107
5.2	Developmental dysphasia	108
5.3	Developmental dyslexia	122
5.4	Developmental dysgraphia	129
5.5	Overview	131
Part III	Language processing in adults	133
6	Understanding language: recognising words	135
6.1	The mental lexicon	135
6.2	Theories about the structure of the mental lexicon	137
6.3	The visual word-recognition system	148
6.4	The auditory word-recognition system	159
6.5	Context effects on word recognition	163
6.6	Overview	170
7	Understanding language: interpreting sentences	172
7.1	Introduction	172
7.2	Units in language processing	175
7.3	Syntactic and semantic processing	186
7.4	Context effects in processing	190
7.5	Drawing inferences	201
7.6	Overview	204
8	Producing language	206
8.1	Introduction	206
8.2	Garrett's model of sentence production	207
8.3	Encoding units in spontaneous speech	212
8.4	Errors in spontaneous speech	217
8.5	Formulating sentences	222
8.6	Overview	229
9	Acquired disorders of language	230
9.1	Introduction	230
9.2	Syndromes of aphasia	233

9.3 The theoretical interpretation of aphasic syndromes	239
9.4 Acquired dyslexias and their relationship to a model of normal reading	243
9.5 Acquired dysgraphia	250
9.6 Overview	251
References	253
Index	268

Figures

1	Indian rock drawing from New Mexico	11
2	Examples of early and modern forms of Chinese characters	12
3	List of ladies – Metro ballroom, Singapore	18
4	Extract from a contemporary Japanese book	21
5	Harrods logo	89
6	Fiat logo	89
7	Presentations of the word yellow	92
8	The original logogen model	138
9	The revised logogen model	144
10	An information processing model of language	149
11	The Johnston-McClelland model	150
12	Raw word position means for each combination of prose contexts and monitoring tasks	166
13	Garrett's model of sentence production	208
14	Picture of a boy hitting a girl with a flower	209
15	The assessment of aphasia and related disorders	234
16	An information processing model of language	245